ITCHING AGONIES.

Every Night I Scratched Until the Skin was Raw.

Body covered with scales like spots of mortar—An awful spectacle—Doctors Useless—Cure Hopeless—Entirely cured by the Cuticura Remedies in five weeks.

I am going to tell you of the extraordinary cure your CUTICURA REMEDIES performed on me. About the 1st of April last I noticed some red pimples like coming out all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later on, when it began to look like spots of mortar spotted on, and which came off in layers, accompanied with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw, then the next night the scales, being formed meanwhile, were scratched off again. In vain did I consult all the doctors in the country, but without aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery I happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper about your CUTICURA REMEDIES and purchased them from my druggist and obtained almost immediate relief. I began to notice that the scaly eruptions gradually dropped off and disappeared one by one, and have been fully cured. I had the disease thirteen months before I began taking the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in four or five weeks was entirely cured. My disease was eczema and psoriasis. I recommended the CUTICURA REMEDIES to all in my vicinity, and I know of a great many who have taken them and thank me for the knowledge of them, especially mothers who have babes with scaly eruptions on their heads and bodies. I cannot express in words the thanks to you. My body was covered with scales and I was an awful spectacle to behold. Now my skin is as nice and clear as a baby's.

A MIGHTY CARAVAN.

Thousands of Boomers Start Across the Cherokee Strip,

LED BY UNITED STATES TROOPS

Miles of Covered Wagons Rolling Through the Deep Mud.

A CAMP ON SALT CREEK FORK

Scenes and Incidents Connected With the Start From Arkansas City and Caldwell—A Dangerous Stream to Cross

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., April 18.—At 5 o'clock this morning [illegible] ready for crossing the Cherokee strip. There were nearly 3000 here, and they have been ordered to move in an orderly manner along the established trails. If any depredations are committed the whole line will be stopped and the guilty ones turned back. The procession will be accompanied by twenty or thirty reporters on ponies. United States Commissioner [illegible] has allowed two to [illegible] Salt Creek and Chilli[illegible] [illegible] and charge the boomers [illegible] cents to cross. An [illegible] on the [illegible] which has lain idle for years will be brought into service.

THE START.

Miles of Covered Wagons Rolling Slowly Through the Mud

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., April 18.—Captain Hays yesterday received instructions from the war department to permit entrance into the strip at 8 o'clock this morning. The south bridge across the Arkansas river is the most direct route to the strip, being just three miles from the border. The road is narrow, with a hedge on one side and a wire fence on the other. The rain had made the mud hub deep. Before dark last night this three miles of road was blockaded with wagons, and impassable either way. Many families slept in their wagons, which stood up to the hubs in mud.

A large party from Wellington has constructed a pontoon bridge which is portable, and they will cross streams on it.

This morning fully 400 wagons were along the line and strung all the way to the limits of Arkansas City, where there were 600 more. There was a hesitancy about the start.

Orders were given by Captain Hays to wait till 8 o'clock, when an orderly would give warning. It lacked a few minutes before 8 o'clock when a Kansas City man called out: "Why should we wait any longer? Follow me!" and drove across the line upon the reservation. A tremendous shout went up from the boomers and they went forward and over the line. The shout was taken up along the line and the entire cavalcade moved forward.

A man named Williams, from Chautauqua county, Kansas, with a wife and [illegible] children, was the first settler to follow the Kansas City men.

[illegible] one thousand white covered wagons were in motion. From an elevation overlooking miles of wagons could be seen, and as the caravan went over the undulating prairie it presented a sight probably never to be seen again.

Perched on a cracker box in the first of ten wagons from Bingham, Kan., Dan Sikes flung an American flag to the breeze. As far as it could be seen it was hailed with patriotic shouts.

For three hours wagons crossed the strip line and moved slowly toward the promised land. On the outside of almost every wagon, strapped to the side, were plows, household goods and farming implements. Extra horses and bunches of cattle followed the wagons, often driven by women and children. One farmer had built a house from the bed of his wagon. It was shingled, and a stovepipe leading from a modern cook stove made a complete apartment.

From the Cherokee strip line to Salt Creek fork is fourteen miles. This fork is a swollen, angry stream, and crossing it is dangerous business. A temporary bridge has been erected, but it is not safe. It is believed a majority of the settlers will camp to-night beside this stream.

Captain Hays broke up camp [illegible] at noon and is following with his cavalry. His orders are to camp to-night at Salt Creek fork and then to take the line of march to-morrow for the Oklahoma line. A camp will be struck by the soldiers just across the line, and Captain Hays will picket his men along the Oklahoma line as far as they will reach. His picket line will be joined by a line of soldiers from Caldwell, and the boomers will be kept at bay until the hour of noon has arrived.

The three miles of road from the Arkansas river along the Ponca trail is in a frightful condition, and it was most discouraging for the settlers, but these men are not made of stuff to turn back. Difficulties of all kinds are met and overcome. The most neighborly feeling exists, and each renders the other all the assistance possible.

Captain Hays, who has kept the boomers at bay, says he never saw a more orderly set of men. He fully expected that they would cause him trouble.

The Indian mission school, half a mile from the Ponca trail, came in a body to witness the start, and men and women on horseback from Arkansas City galloped along the line of wagons and waved handkerchiefs to the boomers.

Prospective merchants, townsiters, bankers and speculators will take the trains Monday.

Wagons from the North continue to pour in, but in no such numbers as were witnessed in the last three days.

Parts of a wagon passed under the temporary bridge over Salt Creek fork this morning, and the supposition is that a family of boomers have been lost in the stream. It is reported that two persons were drowned.

THE START FROM CALDWELL.

Seven Hundred Wagons Start Across the Strip.

CALDWELL, Kan., April 18.—At 10 o'clock this morning a start across the Cherokee strip was made by boomers encamped here. The intention had been to start to-morrow morning, but owing to the condition of the trail, because of heavy rains the last few days, Captain Woodson, commanding the company stationed here to repel the invaders, determined to give the colonists another day to cross the strip.

By 10 o'clock wagons were drawn up on either side of the little bridge where the old Reno trail crosses the line. At just 10 o'clock they were permitted to start. Troops rode slowly in front, the wagons stringing out in single file, making a start of a long procession that will continue to pour over the little bridge into the land of the Cherokees all day long. About 700 wagons left to-day.

CROWDS OF BOOMERS.

Much Fear Felt About Crossing the River Into the Territory.

WELLINGTON, Kan., April 18.—The stream of prairie schooners moving southward has not diminished. The streets of the city are filled with boomers, and they continue to pour in from the northeast and west, frequently from six to twelve wagons and teams being included in one outfit. Such an immigration was never before witnessed in this section.

Old settlers familiar with the Cimarron river, which all of the settlers entering Oklahoma from the northwest will cross, say that its waters are very high and that it is as much as a man's life is worth to cross it in its swollen condition. Its bed is composed in a large part of shifting quicksands, and where a safe crossing can be made to-day, to-morrow in all probability the same place would be a death trap. Many parties who intended to go from here with teams will go by rail, being fearful of serious accidents in fording this river.

LIQUORS MAY BE SOLD.

An Important Decision Regarding the New Territory of Oklahoma

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Commissioner Mason of the internal revenue has decided that under the recent act of congress and proclamation [illegible] to be an Indian country, and that special tax stamps may be sold to wholesale and retail liquor dealers to engage in the business there, under the same terms and regulations as in other states and territories of the United States.

The effect of this decision will be to allow wholesale and retail liquor dealers to purchase special tax stamps in Oklahoma, under the same terms as in other sections of the country. Arrangements are being made to have a force of deputy collectors and revenue agents on hand to see that the laws are enforced and that the interests of the government are protected.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT EXERCISED

Grave Fears of a Serious Outbreak on the Opening of Oklahoma.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—It is very apparent here that the officers of the army are filled with the liveliest apprehension regarding the opening of Oklahoma.

The secretary of war has authorized the statement that the government is fully aware of the situation and has arranged to prevent trouble. It is known that the subject has formed the main topic for discussion at the recent cabinet meetings, and that the attorney general has been called upon to decide the question as to the authority of the war department to act in case of strife, bloodshed or violence in the [illegible] country. Instructions have been sent to the commandant of troops in Oklahoma as a result of the opinion rendered by the attorney general. They were extremely guarded. They are understood to direct the army officers to assist in the maintenance of the law, but to carefully observe the regulations defining their authority and leave arrests for violations of the law to the marshals.

The president might, in case of a serious disturbance, declare martial law over the territory, but this could not be done in advance of a breach of the peace.

The machinery of the government would, it is feared, [illegible] too slow in moving to meet the great emergency which may arise. [illegible] the subject [illegible] by the troops [illegible] in case of interference with the carriage of mails or assaults upon United States property [illegible] form the [illegible] assigned for use of troops to prevent or [illegible] rioting [illegible] in the territory.

FOUR MEN KILLED.

A Desperate and Fatal Fight on the Border of Oklahoma

CHICAGO, April 18.—A [illegible] Fort Smith (Ark.) special says: Four men have been killed on the border of Oklahoma. To-day word was received here of a conflict between a party of boomers and [illegible] Chickasaw [illegible] the fork on Chisholm trail, forty miles west of Oklahoma City, on the Canadian river. The cattlemen [illegible] [illegible] the mounted police [illegible] of Oklahoma refused to permit [illegible] celebrated Chisholm trail [illegible] new territory. A fight resulted, in which [illegible] reinforced by a party of boomers from [illegible] and Fannin counties [illegible]. One guard, two cattlemen and [illegible] were killed in the melee, besides the loss of some valuable horses. The cattlemen [illegible] and went around by the [illegible] intervention.

THE ARMES COURT MARTIAL.

General Beaver Testifies Concerning the Riggs' House Episode.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—In the Armes court martial to-day Governor Beaver testified that personally he had nothing to do with his removal from the parade on inauguration day. Some one had suggested that General Armes be appointed on the staff and, not remembering at the time in his hurry that General Armes was [illegible], he (Beaver) had said, appoint him. When the mistake was discovered he had told Armes how it occurred and dropped his name from the list.

A letter was written by Armes to witness dated April 4, in which Armes requests the governor to stop the court martial proceedings, as they would result in his dismissal, and he preferred death to the loss of his commission. He added that the governor stood in danger of becoming his murderer. In another letter dated the day before yesterday he apologized for the Riggs house episode.

Witness told of this episode, saying that he had laughingly replied to Armes that he could not apologize for his removal, and that he had then felt Armes' hand brush his face in a rude way. He had, in a moment, struck with his crutch at Armes. Armes' action was something in the nature of both an assault and insult. Witness took it to be an attempt to get hold of his nose and was pretty indignant.

THE BOOK COURT-MARTIAL.

The Lieutenant Sentenced to Suspension for Two Years on Half Pay

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The court martial in the case of Lieutenant Commander George M. Book, of the navy, has concluded its labors. The record is now in the hands of Judge Advocate General Remey.

It will be remembered that Lieutenant Commander Book left his ship, the Pinta, at Sitka, Alaska, and proceeded to this city without orders from the navy department.

His defense was that the department paid no attention to his letters, which showed the machinery of the ship to be in a disabled condition, and that he came here in person to explain.

Since his arrival the ship has been ordered to San Francisco for repairs.

Governor Swineford, of Alaska, and Max Pracht, collector of the port of Sitka, were witnesses to show that at various times, when called upon to enforce the laws of the territory, the Pinta was unable to comply on account of the damaged machinery.

The sentence of the court is two years' suspension from rank and duty, and during that time to receive half pay of his grade.

THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Adverse Decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The interstate commerce commission to-day promulgated its decision in the matter of the investigation into the acts and doings of the Grand Trunk railway of Canada.

The decision was prepared by Commissioner Schoonmaker. It declares that common carriers engaged in the transportation of passengers or property for continuous carriage or shipment from a place in the United States to a place in an adjacent foreign country are subject to the provisions of the interstate commerce act in respect to the printing of a schedule of rates and the strict observance of the same.

The investigation has shown that the Grand Trunk Railway Company has allowed a rebate on road shipments in favor of certain consignors in Canada for points in the United States, and the decision declares that the reduced charges accepted or rebate so allowed, are in violation of the interstate commerce act.

MYSTERIOUS ROBBERY.

The Northern Pacific Express Company Loses $15,000 in Gold

BRAINERD, Minn., April 18.—A package containing $15,000 in gold has mysteriously disappeared from the office of the Northern Pacific Express company in this city. Louis Hohmann, the night clerk, received from a train at [illegible] yesterday four sacks of specie. Two contained $1,000 each in gold, and two $500 each [illegible] to be used in paying the employes of the road. Hohmann says he carried all the specie into the vault, turned the combination, and half an hour later he noticed that one fifty bags of gold was missing. He at once notified his superior. Hohmann is regarded as honest and faithful.

The boys confessed that they had caused the fires [illegible] have occurred here lately. They will be sent to the reform school.

NOTES AND INCIDENTS.

It is reported that the Chinese had a Chinese leper in the cellar of their washhouse, who was burned to death, but no definite information is obtainable. The authorities will investigate.

The people are not discouraged, and will begin to build brick blocks as soon as the brick arrives.

It is impossible to give the insurance companies, as the losers are all insured with Percival & Andrus, and the books are in their vault, which is too hot to open.

Many people were able to save part of their property. Brown, the liveryman, saved his horses and carriages. The hotel guests saved their property, and few of the people burned out seem to be very poor, so there will be no distress. Several of the largest losers are out of town, so only estimates of the loss can be given.

No clue can be [illegible] to who was the incendiary, though it is undoubtedly of incendiary origin. The authorities will make a thorough investigation.

In the burned district everything was absolutely destroyed, and only the brick walls of one building are standing.

The building where the fire started was to have been sold to-day to John J. Boogo, of Spokane Falls, who has made large purchases of property in Cheney.

UNNECESSARY COMPARISON.

The East Oregonian calls for the ear of the secretary of the state board of immigration, and, acting upon the supposition that the request has been granted, proceeds to state its business in tones as loud as its circulation will permit. This business is, in brief, to inform the officer addressed that Umatilla county presents rare attractions to lure the intending settler, and to urge him to call the attention of the inquiring immigrant to the alleged fact that "lands are cheaper, more fertile, more abundant; crops are more certain and the climate more salubrious in Eastern Oregon than in any other portion of the state."

Now, Eastern Oregon is, without doubt, a fine section, and there is no reason why a large immigration may not be comfortably and prosperously settled there. But with the exception of the declaration as to the cheapness and abundance of land, which is probably true in the comparative sense in which it is made, the statements quoted are incorrect. The soil of Oregon is fertile in a superlative degree wherever it has been properly cultivated and it is enough to say that "crops are certain" throughout the state. As to climate, the immigrant who hunts for one more "salubrious" than that of Middle and Southern Oregon will search long, and certainly will not find it in any section of the Pacific Northwest.

It is not the province of THE OREGONIAN to direct immigration to one section of the state or to another. This journal labors to present the advantages of the state at large, and desires to see it peopled with an industrious, thrifty population, sufficient in number to insure the development in the near future of its vast, diversified, and as yet literally unmeasured resources. Not the least of the attractions of the state is the variety that it presents in the special adaptability of its distinct sections to the business inclinations of immigrants. Stock-raising, wheat-growing and mining present opportunities to acquire home, comfort and competence in the vast and wonderful region known as Eastern Oregon. The Willamette valley, with its fertile soil, wide prairies, extensive forests, fine water power, and sufficient grazing lands, gives a wide range to agricultural, manufacturing and general business pursuits, while Southern Oregon is fast becoming famed for its fruit and vegetables, as it long has been for its mines.

It is not necessary to the prosperity of one of these sections to disparage another. There is room for all, and all combined form the nucleus of a great and prosperous state, in the development of which each and every section is interested. If the valleys of the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue rivers are more attractive to home-seekers, at first sight than the treeless areas of Eastern Oregon, it is perhaps no cause for wonder, and it is certainly no more cause for complaint, than is found in the fact that the man who desires to engage in stock raising sees in the bunch grass region the place that he crossed the Rocky mountains to find.

The immigration board is willing and anxious to furnish intending settlers with such information as it has been able by earnest endeavor to collect relative to the various sections of the state and the opportunities that they present in various lines. And in criticising the direction that new comers take, it is but fair to remember that they have individual preferences, that in a general way govern their choice in the selection of new homes.

The comparisons instituted by the East Oregonian are not necessarily odious, but they are uncalled for and show a feeling of resentment, for fancied discrimination against the immigration board that is wholly unwarranted.

THE FUTURE OF CHINA.

A prediction is going the rounds of the papers that a time will come when the hundreds of millions of the Chinese empire will become aggressive, learn the arts of war by land and sea, raise an immense army, build the greatest navy on the face of the waters, and wage war against the civilized world, especially America. This is putting a rather low estimate on the great Yankee nation, for it is intimated that the Chinese may be able to whip us into submission as the Goths and Vandals subdued Europe.

Li Hung Chang, the great Chinese premier, puts another construction on the ambition of China. The New York World reports an interview where the great Chang gave a more peaceable forecast of the future of China. He predicted—in very good English, too—that in fifty years the empire will be covered with railways as with a net; its immense mineral resources will be developed; it will have rolling mills and furnaces, and with its cheap labor and cheaper products it may do the manufacturing for the world.

Since then the "go slow" element has got the preponderance in China and has converted the young emperor to the belief that all innovations must be an evil. So no railroads will soon be constructed. This inert policy will work against Li Hung Chang's views, but when all things are ready for it, what can hinder the Chinese from manufacturing and competing in all the world's markets? They can work at lower wages and can furnish raw material and manufactured goods at a figure that will shut off foreign trade from all other countries and perhaps will invade them with their goods.

SCHOOLS AND SCHOOL BOOKS.

The state of Maine has set an example in connection with free schools that is at least worthy of attention, if not imitation. The state furnishes free text books for all its scholars, so that education is literally free. The question of text books comes up here continually for change and for discussion. Teachers become quid nuncs and imagine they know it all, and certainly many of them do know too much, and are too certain of it. If we look at any of the different series of school books now in vogue we find elaborate attempts of the one to outdo the other, but the question arises, especially in the minds of men and women who got their elementary education forty or fifty years ago, what improvement has been made in actual and practical education?

Here is a question that might be answered by going back decade by decade, to examine the advancement made in elementary studies from one period to another. Instead of that let us go back to the begining of the American school book era, or at least to the time when Noah Webster's spelling book was the solid rock on which all education was founded. Did the men and women who now stand at the head of the educational and literary world, ranging 50 years old and upward, succeed in securing a well-grounded knowledge of the English language? If they did, what great improvement has been made in readers and spellers since that time? It is only reasonable to suppose that all the work done since 1825 has not been wasted. It would be folly to suppose that Noah Webster and other makers of school books in old times knew all that was necessary. Here is the question [illegible] put: If the veterans of literature, who studied the elementary works of Noah Webster and others of his time, secured good grounding in our language in a suitable space of time, by the use of these books, what especial use is there for the much more elaborate and expensive school books of our day? It would seem that a competent system of school books could be easily evolved from the mass now published that could answer all practical purposes of elementary study and that could be published by the state, as is provided for by recent legislation in Maine, so that education will be practically free to all.

Here are several questions of importance: 1. Can a simple and efficient course of elementary studies be provided that will answer for the use of public schools at a cost the state can afford? 2. Should the state complete the idea of free education by providing school books as well as teachers and schools? 3. If the state undertakes to furnish free schools, is it not as essential to furnish school books as to furnish teachers? This seems to be a reasonable conclusion, and Maine having set the example, we may expect the rest of the states, in time, if it works well there, will follow.

Up to this time different series of school books have been made to sell, and it would be strange if some publishers did not make every effort to be in the lead and command popularity. At the same time many of us were educated on a much simpler system, and probably these persons stand as well as others who have had the use of the more elaborate books of our day. The wooden-covered Webster's spellers at least taught the young to spell, whereas many of the graduates of our public schools actually are deficient in that respect.

PORTLAND HEIGHTS.

Portland Heights, as now known, consists of a small area on the hills overlooking the city, which afford grandly beautiful views of the country eastward to the base of Mount Hood. The cities grouped in such busy outlines are in the foreground, with the river and its fleet at wharves or anchor, and the Columbia and Vancouver are in mid-view, with a background of varying landscapes—for they are numerous and varying—spread out in all the delights of spring beauty and luxuriance.

But the Portland Heights of the future will be much more extensive than those of the present day. The cable road will develop a succession of heights that will be fully as inviting. To the south of the great ravine rises Marquam's hill, which only needs to be brought within reach to become immensely attractive. This portion of the heights is scarcely two miles from the center of the city and a cable road would bring it into notice and make it very attractive. A few days ago Judge Marquam received overtures from parties who claim to represent capital, offering to construct a cable road if reasonable inducements can be offered in the way of a subsidy.

The attractions of these hills warrant the belief that a cable road will climb them in connection with one of the street car lines at no distant day. No city in the world will then possess more beautiful sites for suburban homes than will Portland-on-the-Willamette.

Chevreul, the centenarian French chemist, died recently, having preserved his health and activity almost up to the last moment of his hundred years of life. This extraordinary longevity calls out the statement that "he took good care of himself, never tasted alcoholic liquor, never used tobacco, was abstemious in all things, married early, and was regular in his habits." To those who consider extreme length of years a boon greatly to be desired, this formula for longevity is valuable. True, a strict adherence to its rigid provisions would not insure a century of life to every man, or to any considerable proportion of men, but it is certain that without the observance of the simple rules summed up in the expression of "taking good care of himself," no man can expect to reach extreme age in the possession of a mental and physical activity that alone renders life, at any stage of its years, a comfort to its possessor and a blessing to his friends.

Rear Admiral Patterson, who died in Washington on the 10th inst., had an honorable record in the war of the rebellion. He entered the United States navy in 1836 and was retired in 1883, his term of service thus covering nearly half a century. He was active in blockade duty off the coast of the Carolinas, made a good record at Fort Fisher in 1863, became senior officer in the outside blockading squadron in 1864, was commissioned captain in 1866 and commodore in 1871. He was in command of the Washington navy yard in the centennial year, and in 1877 became rear admiral. He was a Southern man by birth, hence his loyalty to the government was the more conspicuous. His last service was the command of the Arctic squadron in 1880.

The Goldendale Sentinel sensibly denounces as a rule or ruin policy the proposition made by temperance cranks, and embodied in a memorial to the coming constitutional convention, asking that a prohibitory liquor clause shall be embodied in the state constitution. The Sentinel believes such a clause will prejudice the question and make it very possible that the constitution will fail to receive a majority of the popular vote. The worst of moral reform fanatics is that they cannot appreciate good common sense and see that prohibition is not the true way to secure temperance reform. No law making is effective against a strong sentiment such as the liquor question calls out.

A son was born to an immigrant and his wife on a Southern Pacific train a few days ago, and generous passengers made up a purse to cheer the impecunious parents on their way. In a burst of gratitude these last-named individuals invited the donors to name their son, when, without reflecting upon the helplessness of the little victim, they loaded him down for all his future with the names of "Grover Harrison." If the little fellow does not work at cross purposes all his life it will be because of the truth of the old adage that "there is nothing in a name."

There was much ado made a few months ago over the fact that a foolish and disreputable white girl had married a Chinese actor in San Francisco. The disgusting alliance came to an abrupt termination a few days ago, and the almond-eyed actor now occupies his dingy, mal-odorous den back of the theater alone, his wife, it is said, being in this city. With a degree of common sense wholly unlooked for in such a quarter, the Celestial takes the matter coolly and shows no desire either to follow his wife or compel her return.

Municipal suffrage for women seems to be growing in popularity in Kansas. The experiment has just been repeated the third time and it is thought that the number of votes cast by women will aggregate 40,000. The first year 28,587 women voted. The second only minor offices were to be filled and the vote fell to 15,228. The record of the third year is not complete, but the correspondent of the New York Times asserts that the vote will not fall short of the figures first named.

An Oregon democratic journal publishes a column of correspondence from Washington, in which it is charged that the ignorance and virulence of the American press toward Bayard caused the Samoan disaster by forcing the sending of so many war ships to be wrecked at Apia. This charge is intended for political capital, but it is of a small beer quality. The ships wrecked were sent to Samoa by a democratic administration, of its own volition and without any pressure, in accordance with common usage among nations to send a fleet to any point where a country's rights are threatened. No one blames Bayard or the administration for the loss thus sustained, and this attempt to manufacture capital in politics from a terrible disaster caused by a convulsion of the elements is beneath the dignity of a decent writer.

"Uncle Jim Johnson of Yamhill," so a valley paper says, camped on the present site of Portland, on the 15th of December, 1844, which was then an unbroken forest and upon which the mark of the ax was not yet visible. Now it is a city of 60,000 inhabitants and the metropolis of the Northwest coast. Those who are here to-day and have the good fortune to be alive forty-five years from now will see a much greater transformation and be able to relate more wonder reminiscences than "Uncle Jim Johnson."

John McAllister, the 18-year-old lad who is said to be dying of consumption in the penitentiary at Salem, is the youngest convict ever in that institution. He was sentenced for life from Jackson county, for murdering his father, and it is thought it will not take many years for him to serve out his sentence. The humane hearts of Superintendent Downing and Warden McKinnon have been touched by the young patricide's illness and he has been taken to the home of the latter, where he will receive proper care.

The world's supply of kerosene is in no danger of being exhausted. Rivers of petroleum have recently been discovered in the little-known Northwest territory of Canada. A recent lecturer before the British Royal Engineers said that the oil fields of Burmah would supply light and fuel to all Europe and all Asia for an indefinite period, and now the Cheyenne Sun comes to us filled with glowing accounts of the new oil wells in Wyoming territory. The whole world seems to have "struck oil," and struck it rich.

Some one who writes to the Salem Statesman under the nom de plume of "Business," complains that the O. R. & N. Company hold Salem freight in Portland ten to twelve days before sending it forward to its destination, and insinuates that it is trying to discriminate in favor of Portland by trying to get valley merchants disgusted with San Francisco. "Business" must be a peanut dealer, for no man with brains enough to run any other kind of business would be so silly as to write such stuff as the above.

The Medford Mail is responsible for the latest railway rumor. It reports that parties in the interest of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad are viewing a line from Ellensburgh, Or., via the Applegate, thence to Jacksonville, Medford, Eagle Point and Deakins, thence to Fort Klamath, to learn the feasibility of a road through the pass at the head of the Rogue river and the Umpqua.

Allen G. Mason, of Tacoma, has made a public announcement that he will not run for mayor, and that he considers politics as a "direct and immediate road to perdition." It usually takes a community about ten years to realize that it has a man who doesn't want and won't have any office, no matter what it is.

The Forest Grove Lexicon, now ten weeks old, is not prospering so finely as its publishers desire. The following paragraph appears in the editorial columns: "The business men of Forest Grove have been asking for a weekly paper before they could give it their full support. Come to the front, gentlemen."

Ellensburgh, the booming town in Eastern Washington, is making rapid strides toward greatness, and its citizens are still hopeful of securing the capital of the new state. The latest improvement is a street car line. Five miles of track are to be laid before the snow falls again.

The police throughout France have been supplied by the government with photographs of General Boulanger and ordered to arrest him at sight. That is funny. Boulanger's features are as well known in France as General Butler's are in this country.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Badeau tried to prevent the confirmation of Fred Grant as minister to Austria and did not succeed. Fred Grant may not be the best man for the place, but he has never disgraced himself as Badeau has. The Grant family made this contemptible fellow rich, and he could have been honored as the friend and confidant of General Grant had he not turned against his benefactor. General Grant seems to have been infatuated with this man, to have done so much for so unworthy a specimen.

Different journals tell the reasons why prominent men in their respective communities voted the republican ticket at the November election. In many instances it was because the protective tariff was useful to them, or rather because the Mills bill threatened an interest which the principle of protection favored. Self-interest comes in many times in connection with ordinary business, and men of affairs find themselves confronted with conditions that the theories of democracy cannot offset. Cleveland never said a wiser word than when he uttered that famous sentence: "It is a condition that confronts us, not a theory."

California reports the greatest crop prospects ever known since the memory of man. Some fruit is injured by the cold rains, as the stormy weather prevented a good set of apricots. That is all that can prevent a large fruit crop in Oregon, but the rains of the week past have not been so continuous as to flood the earth, or even to fill the soil to a lower depth. So far our fruit crop can hardly have suffered, as the bloom had nearly all set to fruit before the rains came. This month will be the crucial period for all fruit, and if no long and protracted rains occur, with cold weather to chill and retard the sap flow, we may hope for a good yield of all fruits. Cherries are generally growing finely.

The Roseburg Review publishes with great gusto the report that a man who had been a republican all his life at the North, went South and took up newspapering at Mobile. There he became a democrat of the most rabid sort, as was necessary if one was editing a Mobile paper. But this fellow out-Heroded Herod to such an extent it is strange his patrons did not turn against him. He said there was not an honest "nigger" in the South; that it was a pity they didn't all get killed in the war. He cannot express his disgust for them and contempt for the God who made them. He is merely an example of the dirty scrub of humanity a man becomes when he panders to prejudice.

Railroads appear to be absolved in some degree from the personal responsibility that attends individuals. The O. R. & N. Co. leased the narrow gauge roads of this valley, and actually despoiled and ruined them to an immense extent as to property and business. The supreme court, however, decides there is no responsibility, because the original contract never should have been made, so the narrow gauge company are out and injured. Now the O. R. & N. Co. takes its turn at repudiation, for the Union Pacific withdraws its quarter of six per cent. interest on the stock of that company under the supposed lease, having paid out $308,000 under that contract already. This all proves the force of the old adage that "corporations have no souls."

Many counties in California are experimenting successfully with sugar beets, and there seems to be a desire to grow them extensively. Mr. Pentland, secretary of the Independence board of trade, reports that he has purchased for the board twenty-five pounds of sugar beet seed, to be distributed among the farmers of Polk county to experiment with. The board intends to offer premiums for the best beets, but the best beets will not be the largest, but what yields the most to the acre and has the largest per cent. of saccharine. It has never seemed proper that this valley should grow sugar beets, because the land should pay better in some other crop. The country east of the Cascades, in the sagebrush region, is said to be eminently adapted to their culture, and if so, there is enough of it to supply sugar for the whole United States.

A pathetic story is told of Secretary Noble and an old war veteran who called to ask him to sign his petition for a postoffice in Missouri worth $400 a year. When asked for his name he gave General Benjamin M. Prentiss, for he had been a general in the war and his command bore the brunt of the first day's fighting at Shiloh where, after fighting to protect the rest of the army, his whole command were surrounded and captured. He is now an old man and has been unfortunate so that poverty came with old age. He asked for this poor postoffice to enable him to eke out a bare existence. Missouri politics did not favor him, but his story aroused the sympathies of the present administration. Noble said: "General, I cannot give you that little office, but come here at 4 o'clock." At that hour he was handed an appointment to be Indian inspector at $2500 salary and went home a happy man.

Judge Deady has taken another degree in life. The judge has had many experiences; he has written decisions for many years and made codes of the laws and generally been useful for in these forty years. He worked on the state constitution and was a legislator before that. Having made laws and framed constitutions for two score years, it must come a trifle hard on so eminent a jurist to have the law laid down for him and his hair and nose pulled in his good old age, but that is what it must come to, for the judge is a grandfather, and this, the first grandchild, is a boy, and his name is Deady. What a tyrant the little chap will be! How he will lay down the law and set up the gospel of his own sweet will! Who is there who presides with such dignity and firmness and whose dictum comes so near to being law. And yet, he will now find his match in an important autocrat who knows no law and will care less for legal decisions than the wild wind.

WANAMAKER MISUNDERSTOOD.

Incorrect Ideas Concerning Him in the English Papers.

New York Sun.

The Sunday Times of London contains the following remarkable piece of information concerning American politics:

Rumors of the resignation of the new postmaster general have been in the air ever since he accepted the office. To understand the feeling concerning him you must imagine a bazaar keeper like Whiteley suddenly elevated to the cabinet, without any previous political or official experience, because he had raised a fund to carry an election. Now it is charged that Wanamaker showed a thrifty soul by making money out of the fund he collected. Part of it was wagered on the election of Harrison—the other part being devoted to make that election sure, and all the contributors received their money back with 20 per cent. profit. This offends President Harrison, a rigid Presbyterian, and makes Wanamaker's seat in the cabinet uncomfortable. Armour, the Chicago speculator, who managed the betting fund, has gone to Europe to avoid all questions about the affair. Wanamaker is, of course, a pious person, and ostentatiously travels from Washington to Philadelphia to teach a Sunday school, as if there were no Sunday schools in Washington.

This shows that the most picturesque figure in Mr. Harrison's cabinet is attracting the attention of Europe. There are manifest inaccuracies in the London story, such, for example, as that Mr. Wanamaker accepted a profit of 20 per cent. on money invested by him in the campaign. Even if Mr. Wanamaker were the man to engage in a speculative transaction like that attributed to him by the London newspaper he would never dream of exacting 20 percent. He has publicly put himself on record too often on the question of small profits.

The London idea of our postmaster general as a dark and desperate character whose hypocritical sinfulness offends the rigid Presbyterianism of President Harrison, and who is likely to be driven in disgrace from the cabinet, is ludicrously erroneous. The subjoined announcement, published only yesterday over Mr. Wanamaker's own signature, is five times repeated for sake of emphasis:

Humanity is engaged in an endless effort to combine business with pleasure. Usually they won't mix. Happiness is compatible with business; an unhappy business is pitiful. Pleasure and happiness in our business life belong to different spheres.

It would be arrant nonsense, far-fetched absurdity, hardly less than impertinence, for the average advertiser to speak to sensible readers upon this sort of question. Not so with us. Our relations to the community and the public are such that nonsense or absurdity with others is sense and reason with us.

Dark days the sun obscured, but all the same it shines.

Cambric chemises with wide Torchon lace yoke, edge on neck and sleeves, 60 cents; is good value at $1; we sold it at 65 cents in January sale.

The only cloud at present discernible on the horizon of Brother Wanamaker's destiny is the fatal admiration of the mugwump press.

Prince Jerome Bonaparte appears to be a Jonah. He was on the Comtesse de Flandre when she was sunk in the English channel, and was a passenger on the sister ship, the Princess Josephine, when she ran into an unknown bark on Saturday.

Rumors that Tennyson continues seriously ill are still heard. They are without a better foundation than the past illness from which he has now almost entirely recovered. A friend who visited him recently at the Isle of Wight says that the poet seemed well and in good spirits, and talked with his usual energy and animation.

Lord Beaumont, the husband in the latest aristocratic divorce case in London, has a creditable military record. He fought bravely in the Zulu war, and has received several crosses of military merit from foreign rulers. He visited this country in 1882, and on his return to London was reported to be engaged to Miss Jennie Flood.

The trustees of the Kilmarnock Museum have decided to print a verbatim copy of the holograph manuscripts of Burns' first poems, which were acquired by them last year. The alterations made by the poet will thus be shown, as well as many other peculiarities of his work. It was at Kilmarnock that the first edition of Burns was issued, copies of which are among the rarest that are offered for sale.

Hans Christian Andersen, according to Mr. Gosse, was a peculiar and decidedly unpleasant child. When he was pleased he played on his hat like a tambourine. When harsh words were said to him his tears and sobs came as readily and copiously as those of the immortal turtle in "Alice in Wonderland." The genius of the youthful Andersen was stimulated by weeding in the garden of a lunatic asylum and by inventing little tales for the benefit of the old ladies in the neighboring poor house.

Fun on the Outside.

Pittsburg Dispatch.

The columns of Murat Halstead's paper, since the rejection of his nomination by the senate, present a very good illustration of the remarkably stimulating influence which it has upon an independent editor to be on the outside.

Mr. Halstead has not more than got his batteries into position; but he has found time to produce a large number of interesting facts tending to show that Senator Evarts is an attorney and the creature of the corporations; that Senator Teller ran the interior department, when he was at the head of it, especially for the benefit of the land grabbers; that Senator Quay operated the pardon board of Pennsylvania for the exemption of Kemble from punishment for bribery; that Senator Plumb, while provost marshal during the war, was a partner in a conspiracy to extort money from a man who was in his official power; and that Ingalls and Farwell got their seats in the senate by much the same means as Payne.

We need not at present discuss the evidence adduced to substantiate these interesting allegations; but Mr. Halstead must feel while making them how much more fun it is to wield the free lance of independence than to dwell in the tents of diplomatic innocuousness.

Constipation causes more sickness than any other disorder of the human system. It is surprising that any rational being will permit their bowels to remain in a constipated condition, when they know the inevitable result. Headache, dyspepsia, nervous disorders and piles are four of the most common diseases caused by people neglecting to keep their bowels regular. An occasional dose of St. Patrick's Pills will prevent these disorders. Sold by L. Blumauer & Co.

To Whom It May Concern.

Editor Oregonian:

Five years ago I was struck down with paralysis, and appealed to numerous physicians for aid, and they all pronounced me incurable. I was then recommended to Dr. Wing Lee, of Portland, who in two weeks' time, helped me so I laid aside my crutches, and in one month I was able to do a day's work, and am now as nimble as any man of my age. I recommend the above to all who are suffering with diseases that are pronounced incurable, and any one wishing further information address me at Oakland, Or. Yours, sincerely, JOHN G. TIPTON.

Next morning the spot was again visited, but the ground was rocky and of a broken character, and would not have given signs of a struggle had any taken place. They found a little further off tracks of two horses. The indications were that they were made by horses moving swiftly.

It was also discovered next morning that two young men of the neighborhood, Ennis and Travis, were missing too. Ennis is a son of a family living close to Kelly's. Travis is a young man who spent the winter at the latter place and was recently turned away. Ennis had been attentive to the elder sister of the missing girl. These attentions partaking somewhat of [illegible] offensive character [illegible] and he had apparently transferred his affections to the younger sister, who, however, did not show any fondness for him. The theory that she eloped with Ennis would appear reasonable, were it not for the fact that she left in a half clothed condition without taking any spare clothing. The girl was once heard to say to a younger brother that she would not be with him much longer.

There was bad feeling between the Ennis and Kelley family.

Ennis and Travis are known as bad men, hard cases of unsavory reputation. It is believed Ennis partly by coaxing and by threats, succeeded in getting the girl away. A STRANGE FAMILY

The Parents of a Young Thief Meet on the Witness Stand for the First Time in Years

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The parents of Elin Sullivan were in the police court today and made a stubborn contest for the possession of their daughter, who was arrested Monday night for obtaining [illegible] small sums of money from dressmakers [illegible] by means of forged orders.

The mother first took the stand and became considerably confused when asked to state her name.

"You may call me Mrs. Buckley," she said. Pressed by a question, she said she was married to Buckley by verbal contract. Her former husband, John Sullivan, father of the girl, had obtained a divorce from her illegally, she thought, and since that time the girl had been in her custody.

John Sullivan, father of the wayward girl, then stepped to the witness stand, where the mother and daughter were still seated, and the three were again together for the first time in six years.

Sullivan said that his wife deserted him six years ago, and that at Portland, Or., he obtained a divorce on that ground. He was now section foreman on the Oregon & California railroad, and was able and anxious to provide for his daughter. He desired to take her to Oregon and place her in school in Salem.

To this the mother objected, and said that she desired her daughter placed in some school or institution in this city where she could visit her.

The judge said he was in a quandary. He would inquire into the antecedents of the parties and consider their claims. The case was continued until tomorrow.

CALIFORNIA CROP PROSPECTS

A Probability That This Year Will Be Excelled Only by That of 1880

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The present days are anxious ones for the [illegible] growers in California. It is thought now [illegible] about eight to two in favor of a [illegible] of grain, but the crop is not really an assured [illegible]. In several parts of the San Joaquin valley grain looked well last year up to the [illegible]th of April, when a spell came of two weeks long, when not only were [illegible] also [illegible] half formed kernels were shriveled up and half cooked. Whole fields of grain which before that time had promised [illegible] yields were [illegible] a harvest [illegible]

[illegible] commission merchants [illegible] say the [illegible] this year are [illegible] certainties. Take the whole state over, there is more land planted in wheat than ever before and it now seems that the yield will only be paralleled, if it is paralleled at all, by the banner crop of 1880.

Barley looks well. The crop will be above the average. In Kern county the acreage has been increased 50 per cent. From Fresno, they report that the farmers are counting on twenty-five sacks to the acre, equal to the prodigious yield of fifty-five bushels. In San Bernardino there has been no increase in the acreage, but the yield will be heavier.

All the foothill counties report an increased acreage in fruit.

A largely increased yield of raisins is predicted from Fresno.

The scale pest is reported as having been banished from Los Angeles and the lemon and orange groves are looking thrifty.

RAISINS IN FRESNO COUNTY

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—Statistics received and computed by Secretary Wetmore of the viticultural association, from Fresno county, show that there are 17,500 acres of grape vines in the county, 7500 acres of which has been planted this year. Secretary Wetmore says when all the vines are bearing a full crop the yield will be at least 1,700,000 boxes. The total crop in the state last year was 1,100,000 boxes. Three million boxes were used in the United States last year. Within five years the secretary estimates Fresno county will contribute over one half the supply for the entire country.

THE GOLDEN GATE SPECIAL

It Will Soon Be Discontinued, Owing to Lack of Patronage.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—T. H. Goodman, general passenger and ticket agent of the Southern Pacific Company, says that the Golden Gate special will soon be discontinued. The special has been liberally patronized from the Pacific coast to the East, but on the return trip travel has been exceedingly slack. The total amount taken in will not cover the expenses of the round trip.

If the travel westward were as good as it is eastward there is no doubt that the special would be continued, although it was only put on as an experiment.

The Republicans [illegible] [illegible] Injunction—A [illegible] That Mended Things

A demand [illegible] council [illegible] to adjourn [illegible] the mayor was determined [illegible] them to reconsider [illegible] members [illegible] the hall [illegible] leaving the council without a quorum.

In the [illegible] quorum the mayor instructed the city clerk to take down the returns as [illegible] there being no quorum the clerk declined.

The republican councilmen were sworn in and the usurping mayor began to swear in special police after appointing the old city marshal and police force to act.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

The Outlook Extremely Favorable for Large Crops This Year

ST. LOUIS, April 18.—The Republic will print tomorrow a report giving the fruit and vegetable prospects of the whole country. The reports have all been written during the past month by the best informed parties in their respective states.

The peach crop is expected to be the largest ever grown. Peach buds are alive at this time in every state in the Union, and the season being so far advanced the crop is assured in the West and the South. Although it is too early to safely predict a full yield, yet good crops are expected.

The crop of apples will be much smaller than that of last year, it being the off year for that crop in many of the big shipping points.

The strawberry crop is hardly up to the average, yet much larger than that of 1888, which was the lightest in many years.

The pear crop will average light throughout its growing [illegible]

The grape crop in the West and South has been favored with [illegible]

The general vegetable crop, which is a growing [illegible] the Southern states, is reported fully up to the average.

Florida is now the most formidable rival of all the other Southern states as a [illegible] of early fruits and vegetables, getting into the markets East and West before any other [illegible] several weeks, and her orange crop promises to be larger than that of last year, the heaviest on record.

California, it seems, is drying and evaporating her fruits to a much greater extent since the interstate commerce law raised the rates to distant markets, yet the almost unprecedented low prices prevailing for dried and evaporated fruits now and for months past will discourage operators and reduce the amount of fruit so preserved largely in all of the states.

ROMANTIC, IF TRUE

A Strange Case of Autocratic Rule in the Name of the United States.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The Daily News Washington special says: A very pretty little story, which promises to develop into an interesting trial, comes to Washington from Alaska.

It is to the effect that about three years ago a man named McPherson sailed from San Francisco and eventually landed on one of the Aleutian islands off the coast of Alaska. Mr. McPherson's entire outfit consisted of a suit of clothes, an American flag and cheek enough for a regiment, together with a paper purporting to have been signed by Attorney General Garland appointing him United States commissioner.

As soon as he landed on the island he raised the American flag with a great deal of ceremony, and took command of the 600 natives, and compelled them to address him as "King" McPherson. Each season he exacted a heavy tribute from the natives, and altogether he seems to have been having a lovely time. Things went along very smoothly until a few months ago, when he had some difficulty with three of his subjects, and fearing that there might be a mutiny, hanged three of the rebellious ones.

The report of McPherson's rule reached the treasury department, and a special agent was sent to his island to investigate the matter. This agent recently reported the facts to Secretary Windom, substantially as they are given above.

Now it is said that a revenue cutter will be sent to the island for the purpose of arresting McPherson, and it is the intention of the authorities to bring him to San Francisco and try him for murder.

VOICES OF THE SOUTH.

Expressions From a Number of Prominent Politicians.

WHAT IS THE SOUTHERN QUESTION

And How Should It Be Met to Produce the Greatest Good to the South? The Negro and the Ballot

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—The Inquirer will publish tomorrow [illegible] views which it has collected with prominent politicians of Southern states in answer to questions: "What is the Southern Question?" and "How should it be met to produce the greatest good to the South?" The responses nearly all voiced the same sentiment—that the race problem is the great one to be solved, and that the South should be allowed to manage her own affairs without interference. Among the most prominent gentlemen from whom replies were received are Governor Richardson of South Carolina, Governor Lee of Virginia, Governor Buckner of Kentucky, Attorney General Miller of Mississippi and Lieutenant Governor Mauldin of South Carolina. The tenor of the replies is condensed [illegible] in that of Governor Richardson, who says:

"The Southern question is the race problem: Shall the African or the Caucasian predominate? The solution is in the strict avoidance of the government of any distinctively Southern policy and in leaving to the states themselves the management of their own domestic affairs."

Governor Buckner of Kentucky, protests that there is no 'southern question.' 'But unpatriotic sectional agitation, whether originating in the North or the South, should not be encouraged, and the injury resulting from such agitation would be reduced to the minimum if the people of each state would continue to attend to their own affairs, and unite in supporting the general government in its just exercise of all its legitimate powers.'

Attorney General Miller of Mississippi, says: The contrast between negro and white governments has been so decidedly in favor of the latter that the white people are determined there shall be no return to the former. Indeed, a military despotism would be preferred. When interest and judgment, instead of passion and prejudice, shall control the Southern negro, then the whole question will be solved.

Lieutenant Governor Mauldin, of South Carolina, says: "The Federal government can help the South by appointing to offices men of character and capacity, by dealing generously in the matter of internal improvements and by refunding the cotton tax." In other words says he, let the South alone.

BERLIN, April 18.—The Samoan White Book has just been issued [illegible] in view of the approach of the Samoan conference.

In a dispatch to Herr Stubel, the new German consul to Samoa, dated April 30, Prince Bismarck censures Consul Knappe's conduct throughout the troubles in Samoa. He dwells upon the deplorable fact that without mandate, and without authority or urgency or the likelihood of success, Consul Knappe took measures on December 17th which resulted in the death of a large number of persons and an undesirable change in the position of the Germans, jeopardizing the peace with America, while quiescence would have preserved a tolerable state of affairs.

The sanction of the treaty powers being lacking, he says, Consul Knappe's demand for the control of the foreign relations of Samoa was of no force.

A WILD AND DANGEROUS TRIP

Two Women Ride Down the Rapid Nehalem to Its Mouth.

Mrs J A Deeds and Mrs Daniel Cronin deserve mention as having participated in a feat unusual and adventuresome to their sex says the Astorian They recently made the trip in a small row boat down the Nehalem river to its mouth

This is a daring feat for a man and an astounding one for two representatives of the gentler sex

The Nehalem is a swift, and, at times, a rocky stream, flowing through great and lonely forests and dark and gloomy gorges More than one party of adventurers who have started from the upper settlement have had their boat shivered to splinters before reaching the bay Most of the way through the canyon the stream is said to be a continuous roaring, boiling torrent now leaping over sunken boulders, now gathering up on [illegible] jutting rock and shooting suddenly to right or left and now whirling at dizzy speed in a deep eddy, and thence darting between jagged irregular rock walls to emerge upon the new and ever-changing scenes of peril and excitement

But this party of [illegible] made the trip about two weeks ago They were Mrs Deeds Mrs Cronin D [illegible] [illegible] J A Deeds J W [illegible] and James Fowler Their boat was dug out of a cedar log and is 24½ feet long

NOT CATFISH, BUT BULLHEADS

Mr A H Morgan Throws Some Light on the Finny Denizens of Gray's River and Silver Lake

Mr A H Morgan was yesterday seen in regard to the report published that there are millions of catfish in Gray's river and Silver lake [illegible] said

I presume the fish referred to are the same species in both waters but having seen and eaten some from Silver lake I am satisfied that they are not catfish but bullheads They were planted there several years ago (the article says ten or twelve) giving them ample time to grow beyond their present size were they catfish, but it will be found that they will never increase in size beyond their present dimensions

A full grown bullhead rarely if ever grows to exceed in length more than fourteen inches with proportionate weight while the catfish grows to great length and attains a weight of 100 pounds and over The bullhead is found in great numbers in the rivers and lakes of New York where I caught them many years ago and they are still found therein undiminished quantities, and are considered an exceedingly toothsome fish by all epicures in that state They are not "scaly" as referred to in the article but are covered with an exceedingly tough skin which has to be removed either by skinning as you would an animal or by the application of hot water The former [illegible] much preferable as the latter [illegible] the flesh more or less

[illegible] habits of spawning are peculiar About the time of the year they bore a hole [illegible] about two to three feet deep [illegible] and there deposit the spawn [illegible] carefully guarded by a [illegible] until the young is ready to [illegible] [illegible] of life They [illegible] spawn of other fish as the catfish [illegible]

"What [illegible] of the bullhead?" was asked

In appearance they resemble the catfish so closely that only an expert can detect the difference between the young catfish and full grown bullhead I consider their flesh equal to any of our brook trout therefore they are a very desirable addition to our fish culture Their tenacity to life exceeds that of any other fish I ever caught or saw

His Personal Experience

J T Harrington ex-sheriff of Chautauqua county New York writes

I am glad to say from a long personal experience with ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS, that I am able to endorse all the good things that have ever been said about them, and supplement these by saying, that I frankly believe their value cannot be estimated Their breadth of usefulness is unlimited and for prompt and sure relief to almost every ache and pain that flesh is heir to no other remedy in my opinion either external or internal equals them in certainty and rapidity I have used them at one time for rheumatism, another for backache, again for bronchitis, always with the same result—a speedy cure.

STATE SCHOOL FUNDS CARRIED AWAY

Young Mr Crawford Suspected of Having Opened Letters Not His Own

The Salem Statesman publishes the appended regarding a young man who is well known in this city

There is a quiet rumor on the streets that William Crawford the colored young man so long employed at the state house is in trouble He worked under Hon [illegible] [illegible] secretary of state and retained his position when the new administration took charge He was a bright young fellow, and was generally considered square

He carried the mail between the state house and the postoffice, and often received [illegible] at the postoffice for registered letters The report is that he gambled and this led him to look with covetous eyes upon the valuable packages entrusted to his care that the temptation became too great and he broke open the letters and took small sums at various times most of which passed over the green cloth

It is said that several of the state officers have been summoned before the United States grand jury at Portland and it is presumed they are [illegible] to tell what they know of the transactions of Mr Crawford or Billy as he was familiarly called As near as can be learned from the few particulars in the hands of the reporter the amounts thus far discovered stolen by Crawford aggregate some four or five hundred dollars and most of this has been lost by the state school fund

It is rumored that Mr Crawford is [illegible] [illegible] predicted that if the grand jury finds the evidence well founded Uncle Samuel's strong arm will soon grasp the culprit and [illegible] punished according to his deserts Crawford was let out from his position some time ago

NAVIGATION ON COWLITZ RIVER

There is Not Enough Water on the Bars For the Regular Running of Boats

Speaking about the letter from Toledo W T published in yesterday's OREGONIAN wherein the citizens complained of a lack of transportation facilities, Edwin G Sloan agent of the Joseph Kellogg Transportation Company, said last evening

It would seem that the "sufferers" are supremely ignorant of the laws of navigation for to navigate a stream like the Cowlitz it requires at least two feet of water on the bars and the stage of water on Toutle river bar is [illegible]

Last winter the stage of water in the Columbia river and tributaries was unprecedentedly low of which every steamboat man and logger will bear testimony The steamer Toledo has gone through to Toledo every time there was sufficient depth of water to enable her to reach that point, and her running, as I believe will continue to do so and thus has been run at a loss to her owners

During the present season the company has already spent several hundred dollars improving the channel at the mouth of Toutle river and if the sufferers would only respond proportionately with contributions the channel could be materially improved

WHO DROVE IN THE PLUG

A Singular and Unaccountable Discovery Made in a Fir Tree Trunk

Mr B F Tyler has left at THE OREGONIAN office a section of the surface of a fir tree taken from a point forty feet above the ground in which there is what appears on the outside to be a knot but when the piece was split off in making shakes it was found that the supposed knot was a plug formed from a limb sharpened to a point which has evidently been driven into a knot hole a distance of about three inches

The plug is still in the knot hole and, on the outside looks as if it had grown there, but on the inside of the piece of tree it is a sharp point showing plainly the marks of the ax. The tree was two and one half feet through and this plug was forty feet from the ground The tree stood in the woods half a mile south of Lent's sawmill on Johnson creek, and not near a road and how that plug came there is the conundrum Mr Tyler wants solved

Holes are sometimes bored and sticks put in as steps to climb bee trees, but this was no bee tree and there were no other plugs except this one, forty feet from the ground The tree was cut down a year or more ago and the projecting part of this plug was cut off as a limb and it was only when Mr Tyler split it into sticks that it was found that the limb had been sharpened and driven in probably twenty or twenty five years before

If there is any one who knows anything about this matter he will please come to the front and explain for the piece of tree and plug in it is a greater puzzle than the pigeon clover which is now agitating the Eastern part of the country

THEY ARE UNDESERVING BEGGERS

Two "Professional" Impostors Soliciting Alms Whose Place Is Under Lock and Key

Many will remember the woman with a child at her side and another in a carriage who for several weeks past has plied an accordion on the streets To look at her one would instinctively reach for their pocket book She is quite a good looking woman and succeeded in doing quite a lucrative business until the City Board of Charities took hold of the matter and investigated her case The secretary of the C B C wrote to the Chicago Relief and Aid Society to see if they knew anything about her

In the meantime she told the secretary that her home was in Seattle and that owing to the sickness of her husband she was compelled to beg She said her name was Mrs Bennett Whaley The story she told would touch a heart of stone but the secretary had been there before and was not to be fooled He temporarily provided for the woman and children, but with this she was not satisfied she wanting to continue her street begging

In due time a letter was received from the Chicago Aid Society which stated that the woman whose true name is Waller is a professional beggar She left that city on a "tour" several months ago going as far south as Texas From there she worked the towns along the coast finally reaching Portland She suddenly left this city and is now supposed to be working the Sound

The Chicago letter also states that the woman's father is in comfortable circumstances owning a newspaper route valued at $800 and a lot worth $[illegible]00 It is thought that the woman has grown quite wealthy from the proceeds of her begging trips

GOING THE ROUNDS

[illegible] doing the begging act very successfully in the city He does all his work after nightfall and operates principally in the fashionable residence portion of town He [illegible] to walk boldly up to the back door and ask for assistance If a meal is offered him he refuses and leaves striking the next nearest house

If he finds there are no men in the houses he [illegible] boldly asks for money and if refused tries to intimidate the women The police have been twice notified but have not as yet arrested the fellow He is a heavy set [illegible] complexioned man smooth shaven [illegible] over six feet [illegible]

British Forgery Aimed Against General Washington—A Letter From the Latter

PORTLAND Or April 18 1889

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In the Monthly Magazine of June 1804, there appears a letter from George Washington the first president of the American republic, that possesses extraordinary interest in view of the latest phase of Pigottism The British aristocracy have ever been famous for hitting below the belt and it was but natural that they should forge letters against Washington, when he was struggling for the freedom of his country exactly as the aristocracy of to-day played with the foul products of Pigott with a similar object Their game has always been to run down the men who were dangerous to them [illegible] [illegible] has been their constant weapon No doubt your readers will be interested to see the terms of George Washington's letter especially as we are now so near the centennial of his inauguration I therefore enclose you a copy

These well known facts [illegible] unnecessary during the war to call the public attention to the forgery by any express declaration of mine and a firm reliance on my fellow citizens and the abundant proofs they gave of their confidence in me rendered it alike unnecessary to take any formal notice of the revival of the imposition during my civil administration

But as I cannot know how soon a more serious event may succeed to that which will this day take place, I have thought it a duty that I owe to myself to my country and to truth now to detail the circumstances above recited, and to add my solemn declaration that the letters herein described are a base forgery and that I never saw or heard of them until they appeared in print

The present letter I commit to your care and desire it may be deposited in the office of the department of state as a solemn testimony of the truth to the present generation and to posterity

UNNECESSARY COMPARISONS

The East Oregonian calls for the report of the secretary of the state board of immigration, and, acting upon the supposition that the request has been granted, proceeds to state its business in terms as broad as its circulation will permit. This business is in brief to inform the officer addressed that Umatilla county presents rare attraction to the intending settler, and to urge him to call the attention of the inquiring immigrant to the alleged fact that "land are cheaper, more fertile, more abundant, crops are more certain and the climate more salubrious in Eastern Oregon than in any other portion of the state."

Now, Eastern Oregon is without doubt a fine section, and there is no reason why a large immigration may not be comfortably and prosperously settled there. But with the exception of the declaration as to the cheapness and abundance of land, which is probably true in the comparative sense in which it is made, the statements quoted are incorrect. The soil of Oregon is fertile in a superlative degree wherever it has been properly cultivated and it is enough to say that crops are certain throughout the state. As to climate the immigrant who hunts for one more salubrious than that of Middle and Southern Oregon will search long, and certainly will not find it in any section of the Pacific Northwest.

It is not the province of THE OREGONIAN to direct immigration to one section of the state or to another. This journal labors to present the advantages of the state at large, and desires to see it peopled with an industrious, thrifty population, sufficient in number to insure the development in the near future of its vast, diversified, and as yet literally unmeasured resources. Not the least of the attractions of the state is the variety that it presents in the special adaptability of its distinct sections to the business inclinations of immigrants. Stock-raising, wheat-growing and mining present opportunities to acquire home, comfort and competence in the vast and wonderful region known as Eastern Oregon. The Willamette valley, with its fertile soil, wide prairies, extensive forests, fine water power and sufficient grazing lands, gives a wide range to agricultural, manufacturing and general business pursuits, while Southern Oregon is fast becoming famed for its fruit and vegetables as it long has been for its mines.

It is not necessary to the prosperity of one of these sections to disparage another. There is room for all and all combined form the nucleus of a great and prosperous state, in the development of which each and every section is interested. If the valleys of the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue rivers are more attractive to homeseekers at first sight than the treeless areas of Eastern Oregon, it is perhaps no cause for wonder and it is certainly no more cause for complaint, than is found in the fact that the man who desires to engage in stock raising seeks in the bunch grass region the place that he crossed the Rocky mountains to find.

The immigration board is willing and anxious to furnish intending settlers such information as it has been [illegible] est endeavor to collect relative to the various sections of the state and the opportunities that they present in various lines. And in criticising the direction that new comers take, it is but fair to remember that they have individual preferences that in a general way govern their choice in the selection of new homes.

The comparisons instituted by the East Oregonian are not necessarily odious but they are uncalled for and show a feeling of resentment, for fancied discrimination against the immigration board that is wholly unwarranted.

THE FUTURE OF CHINA

A prediction is going the rounds of the papers that a time will come when the hundreds of millions of the Chinese empire will become aggressive, learn the arts of war by land and sea, raise an immense army, build the greatest navy on the face of the waters, and wage war against the civilized world, especially America. This is putting a rather low estimate on the great Yankee nation, for it is intimated that the Chinese may be able to whip us into submission as the Goths and Vandals subdued Europe.

Li Hung Chang the great Chinese premier puts another construction on the ambition of China. The New York World reports an interview where the great Chang gave a more peaceable forecast of the future of China. He predicted—in very good English too—that in fifty years the empire will be covered with railways, with [illegible] its immense mineral resources will be developed, it will have rolling mills and furnaces, and with its cheap labor and cheaper products it may do the manufacturing for the world.

Since then the [illegible] has got the preponderance in China and has converted the young emperor to the belief that all innovations must be an evil. So no railroads will soon be constructed. This inert policy will work against Li Hung Chang's views, but when all things are ready for it what can hinder the Chinese from manufacturing and competing in all the world's markets? They can work at lower wages and can furnish raw material and manufactured goods at a figure that will shut off foreign trade from all other countries and perhaps will invade them with their goods.

SCHOOLS AND SCHOOL BOOKS

The state of Maine has set an example in connection with free schools that is at least worthy of attention if not imitation. The state furnishes free text books for all its scholars so that education is literally free. The question of text books comes up here continually for change and for discussion. Teachers become [illegible] and imagine they know it all, and certainly many of them do know too much and are too certain of it. If we look at any of the different series of school books now in vogue we find elaborate attempts of the one to outdo the other, but the question arises, especially in the minds of men and women who got their elementary education forty or fifty years ago, what improvement has been made in actual and practical education?

Here is a question that might be answered by going back decade by decade to examine the advancement made in elementary studies from one period to another. Instead of that let us go back to the beginning of the American school book era or at least to the time when Noah Webster's spelling book was the solid rock on which all education was founded. Did the men and women who now stand at the head of the educational and literary world, ranging 50 years old and upward, succeed in securing a well-grounded knowledge of the English language? If they did, what great improvement has been made in readers and spellers since that time? It is only reasonable to suppose that all the work done since 1825 has not been wasted. It would be folly to suppose that Noah Webster and other makers of school books in old times knew all that was necessary. Here is the question [illegible] put. If the veterans of literature, who studied the elementary works of Noah Webster and others of his time, secured good grounding in our language in a suitable space of time, by the use of these books, what especial use is there for the much more elaborate and expensive school books of our day? It would seem that a competent system of school books could be easily evolved from the mass now published that could answer all practical purposes of elementary study and that could be published by the state, as is provided for by recent legislation in Maine, so that education will be practically free to all.

There are several questions of importance. 1 Can a simple and efficient course of elementary studies be provided that will answer for the use of public schools at a cost the state can afford? 2 Should the state complete the idea of free education by providing school books as well as teachers and schools? 3 If the state undertakes to furnish free schools is it not as essential to furnish school books as to furnish teachers? This seems to be a reasonable conclusion and Maine having set the example we may expect the rest of the states, in time, if it works well there, will follow.

Up to this time different series of school books have been made to sell, and it would be strange if some publishers did not make every effort to be in the lead and command popularity. At the same time many of us were educated on a much simpler system, and probably those persons stand as well as others who have had the use of the more elaborate books of our day. The wooden-covered Webster's spellers at least taught the young to spell, whereas many of the graduates of our public schools actually are deficient in that respect.

PORTLAND HEIGHTS.

Portland Heights, as now known, consists of a small area on the hills overlooking the city, which afford grandly beautiful views of the country eastward to the base of Mount Hood. The cities grouped in such busy outlines are in the foreground, with the river and its fleet at wharves or anchor, and the Columbia and Vancouver are in mid view, with a background of varying landscapes—for they are numerous and varying—spread out in all the delights of spring beauty and luxuriance.

But the Portland Heights of the future will be much more extensive than those of the present day. The cable road will develop a succession of heights that will be fully as inviting. To the south of the great ravine rises Marquam's hill, which only needs to be brought within reach to become immensely attractive. This portion of the heights is scarcely two miles from the center of the city and a cable road would bring it into notice and make it very attractive. A few days ago Judge Marquam received overtures from parties who claim to represent capital, offering to construct a cable road if reasonable inducements can be offered in the way of a subsidy.

The attractions of these hills warrant the belief that a cable road will climb them in connection with one of the street car lines at no distant day. No city in the world will then possess more beautiful sites for suburban homes than will Portland-on-the-Willamette.

Chevreul, the centenarian French chemist, died recently, having preserved his health and activity almost up to the last moment of his hundred years of life. This extraordinary longevity calls out the statement that "he took good care of himself, never tasted alcoholic liquor, never used tobacco, was abstemious in all things, married early, and was regular in his habits." To those who consider extreme length of years a boon [illegible] to be desired, this formula for longevity is valuable. True, a strict adherence to its rigid provisions would not insure a century of life to every man or to any considerable proportion of men, but it is certain that without the observance of the simple rules summed up in the expression of "taking good care of himself," no man can expect to reach extreme age in the possession of a mental and physical activity that alone renders life at any stage of its years a comfort to its possessor and a blessing to his friends.

Rear Admiral Patterson, who died in Washington on the 10th inst., had an honorable record in the war of the rebellion. He entered the United States navy in 1836 and was retired in 1883, his term of service thus covering nearly half a century. He was active in blockade duty off the coast of the Carolinas, made a good record at Fort Fisher in 1865, became senior officer in the outside blockading squadron in 1864, was commissioned captain in 1866 and commodore in 1871. He was in command of the Washington navy yard in the centennial year, and in 1877 became rear admiral. He was a Southern man by birth, hence his loyalty to the government was the more conspicuous. His last service was the command of the Arctic squadron in 1880.

The Goldendale Sentinel sensibly denounces as a rule or ruin policy the proposition made by temperance cranks, and embodied in a memorial to the coming constitutional convention, asking that a prohibitory liquor clause shall be embodied in the state constitution. The Sentinel believes such a clause will prejudice the question and make it very possible that the constitution will fail to receive a majority of the popular vote. The worst of moral reform fanatics is that they cannot appreciate good common sense and see that prohibition is not the true way to secure temperance reform, and is [illegible] making it effective against a strong sentiment such as the liquor question calls out.

A son was born to an immigrant and his wife on a Southern Pacific train a few days ago and generous passengers made up a purse to cheer the impecunious parents on their way. In a burst of gratitude these last-named individuals invited the donors to name their son, when without reflecting upon the helplessness of the little victim they loaded him down for all his future with the name of "Grover Harrison." If the little fellow does not work at cross purposes all his life it will be because of the truth of the old adage that "there is nothing in a name."

There was much ado made a few months ago over the fact that a foolish and disreputable white girl had married a Chinese actor in San Francisco. The disgusting alliance came to an abrupt termination a few days ago and the almond eyed actor now occupies his dingy, malodorous den back of the theater alone, his wife it is said being in this city. With a degree of common sense wholly unlooked for in such a quarter the Celestial takes the matter coolly and shows no desire either to follow his wife or compel her return.

Municipal suffrage for women seems to be growing in popularity in Kansas. The experiment has just been repeated the third time and it is thought that the number of votes cast by women will aggregate 40,000. The first year 28,587 women voted. The second only minor offices were to be filled and the vote fell to 15,228. The record of the third year is not complete but the correspondent of the New York Times asserts that the vote will not fall short of the figures first named.

An Oregon democratic journal publishes a column of correspondence from Washington in which it is charged that the ignorance and virulence of the American press toward Bayard caused the Samoan disaster by forcing the sending of so many war ships to be wrecked at Apia. This charge is intended for political capital, but it is of a small beer quality. The ships wrecked were sent to Samoa by a democratic administration, of its own volition and without any pressure, in accordance with common usage among nations to send a fleet to a point where a country's rights are threatened. No one blames Bayard or the administration for the loss thus sustained, and this attempt to manufacture capital in partisan form from a terrible disaster caused by a convulsion of the elements is beneath the dignity of a decent writer.

Uncle Jim Johnson, of Yamhill, so a Salem paper says, camped on the present site of Portland on the 18th of December, 1841, which was then an unbroken forest and upon which the mark of the ax was not yet visible. Now it is a city of 60,000 inhabitants and the metropolis of the Northwest coast. Those who are here to-day and have the good fortune to be here forty-eight years from now will see a [illegible] greater transformation and will [illegible] more wonderful reminiscences than "Uncle" Jim Johnson.

John McAllister, the 16-year-old lad who is said to be dying of consumption in the penitentiary at Salem, [illegible]. He was sentenced for life from [illegible] for murdering his father and it was thought it would not take many years for him to serve out his sentence. The humane hearts of Superintendent Downing and Warden McKinnon have been touched by the boy's pitiful plea and he has been taken to the home of his sister where he will receive proper care.

The world's supply of illuminating oil is in no danger of being exhausted. Lakes of petroleum have recently been discovered in the unknown Northwest territory of Canada. A recent lecturer before the British Royal Engineers said that the oil fields of Burmah would supply light and fuel to all Europe and all Asia for an indefinite period, and now the Cheyenne Sun comes to us filled with glowing accounts of the new oil wells in Wyoming territory. The whole world seems to have "struck oil," and struck it rich.

Some one who writes to the Salem Statesman under the nom de plume of "Business" complains that the O. R. & N. Company hold Salem freight in Portland ten to twelve days before sending it forward to its destination, and insinuates that it is trying to discriminate in favor of Portland or trying to get Salem merchants disgusted with San Francisco. "Business" must be a peanut dealer, for no man with brains enough to run any other kind of business would be so silly as to write such stuff as the above.

The Medford Mail is responsible for the latest railway rumor. It reports that parties in the interest of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad are viewing a line from Ellensburgh, Or., via the Applegate, thence to Jacksonville, Medford, Eagle Point and Dexains, thence to Fort Klamath, to learn the feasibility of a road through the pass at the head of the Rogue river and the Umpqua.

Allen C. Mason, of Tacoma, has made a public announcement that he will not run for mayor, and that he considers politics as a direct and immediate road to perdition. It usually takes a community about ten years to realize that it has a man who doesn't want and won't have any office, no matter what it is.

The Forest Grove Leader, now ten weeks old, is not prospering so finely as its publishers desire. The following paragraph appears in the editorial columns: "The business men of Forest Grove have been asking for a weekly paper before they could give it their full support. Come to the front, gentlemen."

Ellensburgh, the booming town in Eastern Washington, is making rapid strides toward greatness and its citizens are still hopeful of securing the capital of the new state. The latest improvement is a street car line. Five miles of track are to be laid before the snow falls again.

The police throughout France have been supplied by the government with photographs of General Boulanger and ordered to arrest him at sight. The [illegible] Boulanger's features are as well known in France as General Butler's are in this country.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

[illegible] for the place, but he has already [illegible] himself as Badeau [illegible]. The Grant family [illegible] this contemptible fellow [illegible] honored as the friend and confidant of General Grant had he not turned [illegible]. General Grant seem to have been [illegible] this man, to Badeau [illegible] specimen.

Different [illegible] nent men in their respective communities voted the republican ticket at the November election. In many instances it was because the protective tariff was useful to them, or [illegible] the Mills bill threatened an interest which the principle of protection favored. Self interest counts many times in connection with ordinary business, and men of affairs find themselves confronted with conditions that the theories of democracy cannot offset. Cleveland never said a wiser word than when he uttered that famous sentence: "It is a condition that confronts us, not a theory."

California reports the greatest crop prospects ever known since the memory of man. Some fruit is injured by the cold rains, as the stormy weather prevented a good set of apricots. That is all that can prevent a large fruit crop. So far [illegible] the rains of the week just past have not been so continuous as to flood the earth, or even to fill the soil to a lower depth. So far our fruit crop can hardly have suffered, as the bloom had nearly all set to fruit before the rain came. The month will be the critical period for all fruit, and if no long and protracted rains occur with cold weather to chill and retard the sap flow, we may hope for a good yield of all fruits. Cherries are generally growing finely.

The Roseburg Review publishes with greeting the report that a man who had been a republican all his life at the North went South and took up newspapering at [illegible]. There he became a democrat of the most rabid sort, as was necessary if one was editing a Mobile paper. But this fellow out-Heroded Herod to such an extent it is strange his patrons did not turn against him. He said there was not an honest [illegible] in the South, that it was a pity they didn't all get killed in the war. He can't express his disgust for them and contempt for the God who made them. He is another [illegible] example of the dirty sort of humanity a man becomes when he [illegible].

[illegible] from the [illegible] individuals [illegible] O. R. & N. Co. has had the narrow gauge [illegible] original contract [illegible] the narrow gauge [illegible]. Now the O. R. & N. Co. takes the [illegible] tion for the Union Pacific [illegible] of six per cent interest on the stock of the company under this supposed lease, having paid out $308,000 under that contract already. [illegible] proves the force of the old saying that corporations have no souls.

Many counties in California are experimenting successfully with sugar beets and there seems to be a desire to grow them extensively. Mr. [illegible] land, secretary of the Independence board of trade, reports that he has purchased for the board twenty-five pounds of sugar beet seed to be distributed among the farmers of Polk county to experiment with. The board intends to offer premiums for the best beets, but the best beets will not be the largest, but what yields the most to the acre and has the largest per cent of saccharine. It has never seemed proper that this valley should grow sugar beets, because the land should pay better in some other crop. The country east of the Cascades, in the sagebrush region, is said to be eminently adapted to their culture, and if so there is enough of it to supply sugar for the whole United States.

A pathetic story is told of Secretary Noble and an old war veteran who called to ask him to sign his petition for a postoffice in Missouri worth $400 a year. When asked for his name he gave General Benjamin M. Prentiss, for he had been a general in the war and his command bore the brunt of the first day's fighting at Shiloh, where after fighting to protect the rest of the army his whole command were surrounded and captured. He is now an old man and has been unfortunate, so that poverty came with old age. He asked for this poor postoffice to enable him to eke out a bare existence. Missouri politics did not favor him, but his story aroused the sympathies of the present administration. Noble said: "General, I cannot give you that little office, but come here at 4 o'clock." At that hour he was handed an appointment to be Indian inspector at $2,500 salary and went home a happy man.

Judge Deady has taken another degree in life. The judge has had many experiences. He has written decisions for many years and made [illegible] of the laws and precedents been useful for [illegible] forty years. He worked for the state constitution and was a legislator before that. Having made law and framed constitutions for two score years, it must come a trifle hard on so eminent a jurist to have the law laid down for him and his hair and nose pulled in his good old age, but this is what it must come to, for the judge is a grandfather, and this, the first grandchild, is a boy, and his name is Deady. What a tyrant the little chap will be! How he will lay down the law and set up the gospel of his own sweet will! Who is there who presides with such dignity and firmness and whose dictum comes so near to being law? And yet he will now find his match in an important autocrat who knows no law and will care less for legal decisions than the wild wind.

WANAMAKER MISUNDERSTOOD.

Incorrect Ideas Concerning Him in the English Papers.

New York, [illegible]

The London Times of [illegible] the following remarkable piece of information concerning American politics: [illegible] to the general [illegible] for the office. To understand the feeling excited among [illegible] you must imagine a [illegible] keeper [illegible] suddenly elevated to the cabinet without any previous political or official experience, because he had raised a fund to carry an election. Now it is charged that Wanamaker showed a thrifty son by making money out of the fund he collected. Part of it was wagered on the election of Harrison—the other part being devoted to make that election sure and all the contributors now receive their money back with 30 per cent profit. This offends Harrison, who is a rigid Presbyterian, and makes Wanamaker's [illegible] in the cabinet [illegible]. Another [illegible] who managed the betting [illegible] has gone to Europe to avoid all questions [illegible] the affair. Wanamaker is of course [illegible] and [illegible] travels from Washington to Philadelphia [illegible] Sunday [illegible] Washington.

This shows that the most picturesque figure in Mr. Harrison's cabinet is attracting the attention of Europe. There are manifest inaccuracies in the London story, such for example as that Mr. Wanamaker accepted a profit of 30 per cent on money invested by him in the campaign. Even if Mr. Wanamaker were the man to engage in a speculative transaction like that attributed to him by the London newspaper he would never dream of exacting 30 per cent. He has publicly put himself on record too often on the question of small profits.

The London idea of our postmaster general as a dark and desperate character whose hypocritical sinfulness offends the rigid Presbyterianism of President Harrison, and who is likely to be driven in disgrace from the cabinet, is ludicrously erroneous. The subjoined announcement, published only yesterday over Mr. Wanamaker's own signature, is five times repeated for ease of emphasis:

Humanity is engaged in an endless effort to combine business with [illegible]. Happiness [illegible] business [illegible] different spheres.

It would be arrant nonsense, far-fetched absurdity hardly less than impertinence, for the average advertiser to speak to sensible readers upon this sort of question. Not so with us. Our relations to the community and the public are such that nonsense or absurdity with others is sense and reason with us.

Dark days the sun obscures but all the same it shines.

Cambric chemises with wide Torchon lace yoke edge on neck and sleeves, 60 cents. Is good value at $1. We sold it at 60 cents in January sale.

The only cloud at present discernible on the horizon of Brother Wanamaker's destiny is the fatal admiration of the mugwump press.

Fun on the Outside.

Pittsburg Dispatch.

The columns of Murat Halstead's paper since the rejection of his nomination by the Senate present a very good illustration of the remark [illegible] on the outside.

Mr. Halstead has not more than [illegible] position, but he has found time to [illegible] a large number of interesting acts [illegible] to show that Senator Evarts is an attorney and the creature of the corporations, that Senator [illegible] when he was [illegible] pardon [illegible] of Kemble from punishment for bribery, that [illegible] was a partner in a conspiracy to extort [illegible] from a man who was in Kemble's power, and [illegible].

We need not at present discuss the evidence adduced to substantiate these interesting allegations, but Mr. Halstead must feel as he is making them how much more fun it is to wield the free lance of independent editorship than to dwell in the tents of diplomatic [illegible].

Dry Stocking Bar.—Captain W Young, United States Engineer, has advertised for proposals for the construction of about 1200 feet of sheet pile dike, pile and brush revetment, and spur dikes for the improvement of Dry Stocking bar, at the mouth of the Tillamook river The sheet pile dike consists of a row of piles with timber stringers along it and scantling spiked along it in a continuous sheet The object of this and the spur dikes is to direct the current so that it will wash a good channel through Dry Stocking bar and allow schooners and steamboats to go up to Tillamook City without detention The revetment of piles, brush and stone is to protect the bank at a certain point from being washed away. The citizens of Tillamook City will be pleased to have the government spend some of the surplus' on improving the water way to their town

The Moth Miller Has Come.—The innocent appearing little moth miller has put in an appearance and has come to stay all summer Furs and woolen goods should be packed away in paper or linen bags, securely fastened and placed in cedar or camphor wood chests Articles which have been packed away should be shaken and beaten and exposed to the bright sunshine which will kill any eggs moths may have deposited Look after this at once, as the moth miller is not here for its health and is irrepressible and energetic in attending to its business of destruction A little care will save many a pang when furs are brought out next fall

Boring Artesian Wells.—Mr Corbett who bored the artesian well on W S Ladd s farm has submitted proposals for boring an artesian well at the big hotel the proprietors having this plan for supplying water for the hotel under consideration They will have steam engines and boilers for running elevators and heating, and might as well pump water for the hotel as not Mr Corbett has also put in a bid for boring a well on Holladay s addition to supply water for that tract and vicinity These wells would not be necessary if we had Bull Run water but as it may be some time before this is brought in some provision must be made for a supply

The Portland Rowing Association is one of the principal athletic associations of the city, and includes in its membership all the best known young men of the city, and their concert will doubtless be well patronized

Sawed Through an Iron Spike.—The hands at the Capital lumbering mills had quite a scare, says the Salem Statesman, for a few minutes yesterday afternoon The big saw struck a piece of an old iron bandspike, an inch and a half wide and nearly half an inch thick which had become imbedded in a log and was not discovered until it came in contact with the saw This chunk of wrought iron was sawed clean through before the machinery could be stopped, and the teeth of the saw were smashed off like matches and sent flying in every direction There was no damage except that the saw needs some dentist work

More Rolling Stock.—A telegram has been received by Mr Frank Dekum to the effect that the new passenger coaches ordered for the Portland & Vancouver railway are finished, and have left Chicago on their way here They will be brought by the most expeditious route as the company desire to have them running by the 30th to enable them the better to accommodate the large number from Vancouver who will visit this city to attend the celebration on that day The cars are very handsome ones and will be a valuable addition to the rolling stock of the company

Why the Captain Chose.—A sea captain who carries his eyes set wide apart in his forehead, and who knows how to use them too, has just left this port with his gallant ship to sail the ocean o'er back to Merry England He takes with him many pleasant recollections, but he also takes something of a more substantial character. He takes the title to four beautiful lots in Edendale which he had the good business sagacity to purchase A few more choice ones to be had at 163 Second street. See to-day's ad on fourth page

The Decline in O R & N Stock.—An Oregonian reporter yesterday called on Mr Edward Cookingham assistant to the general manager of the O R & N Co. in reference to a New York dispatch published yesterday, stating that the decline in its stock is due to the unsettled condition of the lease to the Oregon Short Line I think the lease has nothing to do with the decline ' he said It is due to a falling off in the earnings brought about by small wheat shipments "

A Runaway Car.—While one of the cars on the Eleventh street branch of the Multnomah street railway line was descending the steep grade from Yamhill street toward Washington yesterday afternoon, the horses took a notion to run at the top of their speed and could not be checked until they had crossed the main track on Washington street. No one was hurt the only passenger jumping off in time but the car was slightly damaged

The Salmon Pack Closed.—Fish Commissioner Thompson says that the pack at the Clackamas hatchery has been closed so that the salmon cannot go further up the Clackamas river than the point where the hatchery is located Mr Thompson thinks the pack should have been closed two or three weeks ago as the season is an early one and the salmon have been ascending the river for some time

Special Notice to the Trade.—Some infamous parties have circulated a report that I have severed my connection with the well known firm of W & I Steinhart & Co which is an untruth as I have no such intention and I take this method of informing the trade that I will call on them without fail this coming season with as handsome a line of clothing as can be shown up Theo Mansfield

FIFE MINSTREL PERFORMANCE.

Goodyear Cook & Dillon's Minstrels Make Their First Appearance to a Pleased Audience

The minstrel company, who made their initial bow to a Portland audience last evening, have every reason to congratulate themselves on the warmth of their reception for never was an audience kept in better humor and never had they better reason to be pleased It was one of the cleanest and neatest performances and in many respects the best of its kind we have ever had There is not an incapable one among them but on the contrary the company is made up of some of the best known performers in the business and some of them have been seen here before with other companies

Not the least pleasing feature of their entertainment is its freedom from coarseness and vulgarity There is nothing in the least degree objectionable on this score which cannot be said of all similar organizations There are also fewer jokes of a ' chestnutty' flavor and those that have it will bear hearing more than once Every act is neatly and cleverly done and the performance goes with a snap and life which makes it take

The first part with Welby Edwards, Al Leech and Goodyear on the ends is well arranged the singing is harmonious and the fun spontaneous Harry Green's tenor song ' The Song That Reached My Heart," is a beautiful melody was well sung and earned him an encore It was the same with Ellsworth Cook the male soprano's song, Pilot's Daughter ', and C Daly s song "Watching at the Window " Al Leech s medley and dance also were very cleverly done and had to be repeated

The second part opened with an artistic parlor clog by the Leech and Dillon brothers in which Welby and Pearl did a very fine piece of work in their schottische waltz and mazurka clog

One of the most enjoyable as well as artistic acts was the wonderful club swinging of Ben Mowatt. He is simply perfect in his manipulation of the clubs The Leech brothers in their banjo act, which has been seen here before were as artistic as ever, and twice recalled Welby and Pearl in their acrobatic and knockabout scene were highly amusing and set the house in roars Charlie Goodyear was as funny as ever in his talk, and George Edwards, too held up his end of the fun in good shape They are both as clever negro comedians as any in the business The three Nichols brothers do a very neat piece of acrobatic work in somersaulting pyramid acts and jumping from shoulder to shoulder

The sketch Rehearsal in the Woods ' introduces some neat vocal and saltatorial work by the Leeches and Dillons and comedy by Welby and Edwards The programme concluded with a most laughable sketch in which Goodyear and Welby furnished the fun entitled "Willy Buffalo s Wild West, which sent the audience home in high good humor

Minstrel performance again to night

The California Soap Mines

The natural soap mines of Owens Lake, Cal, are thus accounted for by one of the company now working them He says that the waters of the lake contain a strong solution of borax and soda In these waters there breeds a grub that becomes a fly The flies die in the water and drift ashore covering the ground to the depth of a foot or more The oily substance of the flies blends with the borax and soda and the result is a layer of pure soap These strata repeated from year to year form the soap mines where large forces of men are now employed This soap miner is quoted in a San Francisco paper as follows There is another queer thing about the waters of these lakes You shoot a duck there and fail to get it and in a little while when it drifts ashore you find that its fat breast and sides have changed to an elegant toilet soap and you can chip it off and use it and it is just as nice as any refined soap '

THE DEPOSED SOVEREIGN

Hard Times for the Old Baby When Displaced by the New Baby.

Harper's Bazar

Whoever may be the [illegible] head of the house, the baby is [illegible] ruler. To him all [illegible] and his dominion [illegible] ignorant [illegible] extending beyond the limit [illegible] his arm [illegible] thought of the little one [illegible] the mother [illegible] that she must be [illegible] child in his growth and progress. Both parents feel [illegible] to make themselves better and wiser that they may never run the risk of losing respect in the baby's eyes that were then [illegible] long [illegible]

In [illegible] no matter the baby's comfort [illegible] The arrangement of the home, [illegible] must conform to [illegible] to his desire. There should be no cause for wonder if after a while [illegible] his own with rather more loudly than is consistent with the idea that a child should be subject to his parents.

When matters come to this pass it is a common thing to hear said of the young despot: "Nothing will cure that child of being spoiled but the arrival of another baby." This remedy is usually efficacious, but the mother must have a care that its application [illegible] the effect of embittering the elder child's heart against the new little brother or sister.

We none of us like to be relegated to the place of second fiddle when we have, or some time been passing a [illegible] our own entire satisfaction [illegible] as we flattered ourselves to the delight of our friends. An abdication is always a difficult duty to accomplish gracefully, and the little ruler of the nursery finds it no easier than would the lord of a more extended kingdom. The older the child the harder it is, as a general thing for him to realize that he must henceforth content himself with the divided devotion of those about him. He is too young to comprehend that the lessened attention does not imply a withdrawal of love, but only increased demands upon the manifestations of that affection. All the mother's tenderness and discretion will be needed to prevent the rousing of jealousy in the heart of the quondam sovereign.

A baby has a right to a certain amount of love and petting, and except in rare instances he receives both without stint. Until the birth of a second child he has caresses constantly showered upon him. The new toys have all been for him; he has been an almost inseparable companion in his father's and mother's drives and drive [illegible] excursions and has been made the pet of every one from his parents down to the cook. In an instant as it seems to him all this has changed. The interest of each member of the household seems to center about the cradle of the baby sister. For her gifts are [illegible] for her solicitous inquiries are [illegible] His play [illegible]

[illegible] he is deprived of his mother [illegible] the loving arms that were always open to him, the gentle sympathy that always greeted his joys and his sorrows. Possibly he is cruelly told by a servant or some thoughtless friend that [illegible] "mamma does not love him any more now that she has another baby" [illegible]

Even in her [illegible] absorption in the new infant who depends entirely upon her, the mother must be constantly mindful of her elder child. She must let him see plainly that her love for him is undiminished [illegible] from God to [illegible] father and mother. She must plan for the little one's future and awaken his latent manliness by making him feel that he is to be his sister's protector [illegible] send them a baby [illegible] little creature [illegible]

THE WRECK OF THE LABOUCHERE

Twenty Three Years Ago, Off Point Reyes She Went Down

Victoria Standard

Last Monday was the 23d anniversary of the loss of the steamer Labouchere, off [illegible] California on her voyage to Victoria. Since then nearly a quarter of a century has passed and has brought with it great and important changes in the building and proportion of vessels on the Northern coast. At that time a steamer making the trip from Frisco to Victoria in four days was considered a very fast boat. Those were the days of the [illegible] before the [illegible] from Frisco to Victoria the coast was well surveyed but north of Victoria nearly all trusted to Vancouver and Kelzbue's chart [illegible] the Northern [illegible] with their own vessels [illegible] built [illegible] regardless of speed. The safe running of the trading trips depended entirely upon the local knowledge of the captains and officers of the vessels and it must be acknowledged they did their duty well. Under the command of old pioneers such as McNeil, Swanson, Mitchell, Lewis, and a number of others they made a personal survey of the northern coast and their pathways are still used to this day by all navigators. There being at that time no dry dock or place in which to repair a large vessel in the event of a disaster all their vessels were built so strong that an ordinary collision with a rock required no more labor than a little caulking to make it strong again. In fact the [illegible] of many rocks was at covered by the [illegible] their vessels accidentally [illegible] the damage of the rock. [illegible] Surveys of nearly all the Northern channels and waters have been made by both the English and American governments, and with ordinary care, the various intricate channels can be navigated. The good [illegible] left [illegible] for Victoria on Saturday, April 14th, 1866, with a large number of passengers and a good load of freight but struck on Point Reyes at 10 o'clock that night and sank early next morning. [illegible] but three lives were lost but as he [illegible] the colony [illegible] Victoria which had not at that time shown any symptom of assuming the great and glorious position she now occupies. Excitement Over a Rich Gold Discovery in the Ruby District.

The Big Bend Branch of the Northern Pacific—An Attempt to Defeat Statehood—Notes of Progress

A Ruby City correspondent of the Seattle Post Intelligencer, under date of April 13, writes as follows:

There is great excitement in Ruby district over the discovery of $200 to the ton gold rock about four miles south of Ruby City along the west slope of Conconully creek. The ledge is about forty feet wide and the gold is in decomposed, iron stained rock. A great many locations are now being made there [illegible] crowded with newcomers and general prosperity is anticipated. The [illegible] merchants [illegible] within the last month. The survey shows that the tunnel will tap the Fourth of July [illegible] 600 feet and at a depth of 200 feet. Men are now at work erecting the flume.

Daniel McAskell, who has been sick with consumption here for several months past, died last night at 9 o'clock. Deceased came here from Ellensburg about a year ago. Soon after his arrival he was confined to his bed from which he never rose. He was repeatedly asked about his friends but always refused to mention his home, any reference to which seemed to cause him pain. There is nothing among deceased's belongings to indicate who or where his friends are.

CENTRAL WASHINGTON RAILROAD

Construction of the Big Bend Branch of the Northern Pacific Soon to Begin.

From a reliable railroad authority the Spokane Chronicle announces that work will soon be begun on the Central Washington, otherwise the Big Bend branch of the Northern Pacific from Davenport west. The line will be continued from Davenport through the Grand Coulee to Waterville this year. It will then be continued across the Columbia river and along the Wenatchee valley until Mount Stewart is passed, when it will run towards Cle-elum where it will join the present branch at that point. The road from Cle-elum has been already extended twelve miles this year to the mines and this new track will be used. Not improbable the road will be built east from Cle-elum, as well as west from Davenport this season though this has not been definitely settled. Three parties of surveyors will be in the field in a few days. It will be noticed that from Davenport, and in fact from Medical Lake, this proposed line parallels the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern until Mount Stewart is passed and the road leaves the Wenatchee valley. This route is ninety miles shorter than the present line via Pasco, and will make a saving of five hours in time between Spokane Falls and the Sound. It will be used as a main line for passenger traffic and the time from this city to the Sound will be [illegible] nearer each other and the time [illegible] trip [illegible] St. Paul on the Northern [illegible]

A TALK WITH SENATOR SHERMAN

He Feels Certain That Canada and This Country Will Some Day Be United

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 10.—Senator Sherman passed through the city this morning en route from the East to his home at Mansfield, O. In referring to the growing sentiment favoring a union of Canada with this country, he said: "The arguments in reference to this subject have not yet reached such a point it could be called a definite question for consideration, but the tendency is gradually becoming stronger in that direction. Annexation is not the proper word. A union of countries would be a better expression. There is no question but that the union will be eventually formed. That the two countries will be united is inevitable, but it may be many years before there will be such a union. I will not likely be in my time, but the younger generation may see it.

"It is hard to predict whether Canada would be purchased by our government, though it might be necessary to indemnify England. I consider that the people of Canada would welcome such a union [illegible] to be the [illegible] of the colonies, and England would not [illegible] to the extent of engaging in war."

THURSDAY, April 18.

Merchandise received or soon to arrive by rail: 1 car farm wagons and fixtures, 1 car harvesters, 77 pkgs hardware, 9 pkgs castings, 38 bxs axes, 5 safes, 4 cs cigars, 80 pkgs tobacco, 100 bgs coffee, 11 cs clothing, 23 cs dry goods, 30 bbls and 25 cs oil, 1 lot canned oysters, 1 lot bacon, 17 pkgs machinery, 59 cs boots and shoes, 5 cs hats and caps, 22 pkgs glassware, 18 cs stationery.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past twenty-four hours: 480 ctls wheat, 954 bbls flour, 2001 ctls oats, 80 ctls bran, 160 ctls millstuffs, 838 sks potatoes, 1710 lbs hides, 26 pkgs butter, 161 bxs eggs, 17 bxs green fruit, 100 pkgs dried fruit, 323 hd sheep, 20 hd cattle.

WHEAT—The market shows no improvement. We quote Eastern Oregon, $1 20; valley, $1 27½@1 30.

EGGS—The market rules firm and trading is active. We quote 16c.

FREIGHTS—Ship owners are feeling firmer and report evidences of a revival of inquiry, and hope that higher figures will be obtainable, but this is a hopeful view of the situation. The Martha Fisher and Solide are still on the disengaged list. The nominal rate is 35s 3d, with but little demand. The Borrowdale and the Grisedale are both headed for this port again, both consigned to Balfour, Guthrie & Co. The list of vessels in port is smaller than for several months. The Ottersjool is the only vessel due to load, that is in just now. She is unloading coal at the gas dock now, preparatory to taking on a cargo of flour. The Gartmore and City of Carlisle have not yet finished taking on lumber. The British India, with wheat, is finishing at Astoria, and the City of Canton, also with wheat, is finished and ready for sea. The following is a statement of the registered tonnage of the port.

In port—Disengaged...	1,636
Engaged loading.	1,798
Loading lumber.	1,858
Ready for sea, at Astoria.	2,108
Total tonnage in port	7,400
On the way—Due to arrive	12,973

The San Francisco Commercial News speaking of freights says: The scarcity of desirable wheat tonnage compels comparative inactivity in freights, but it places holders in the advantage, and generally firmer rates are demanded, although exporters are not yet inclined to proceed upon a revised basis. Yesterday this position was somewhat reinforced by a more encouraging state of affairs in England, 35s coming through as a possible figure for cargoes just shipped, while the Eastern markets were higher throughout. At the close a handy sized iron vessel was taken for Sydney upon reserved terms.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, April 18.—There was no disposition to enter into new contracts to-day, and most of the traders closed out their old ones, which served to make business for the day up to the average. The opening figures were from ¼ to ⅝ per cent. higher than yesterday's close. The close was dull and firm, and generally at about the best prices reached.

Government bonds were dull and strong.

MONEY, BONDS AND STOCKS.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Money on call, easy at 2@3. Prime mercantile paper, 4½@6. Sterling exchange, dull, steady; sixty day bills, $4 86¼, demand, $4 88⅜.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—Produce receipts past 24 hours included 20,000 ctls wheat, 5600 qr sks flour, 2600 ctls oats, 3600 sks potatoes, 2700 ctls barley.

Freights and charters—Transactions in grain vessels during the past week were light, consisting of but one spot charter for Europe, the Br ship Milverton, iron, 2141 tons, taken at 27s 6d for U. K., Havre or Antwerp. Two vessels were taken for wheat from this port to Sydney, viz: Br ship Andora, iron, 1670 tons, at 32s 9d, and the Br ship Bowman B. Law, iron, 1359 tons, on private terms. Br ship Arctic Stream, iron, 1498 tons, arrived in under prior charter to U. K., Havre or Antwerp at 40s. Miscellaneous freights were moderately active, and include the Br ship Coringa, general merchandise to London. Br bk Kitty, merchandise and lumber from Astoria to Hong Kong. Ships Louisiana and Alex Gibson, coal from Seattle to San Francisco. Ship America, bark Eureka and ship Robert L. Belknap, coal from Nanaimo to San Francisco. Br bk Carn Tual, lumber from Eureka to Sydney.

Wheat—The general course of the market has been downward, although at the close the feeling is somewhat steadier, owing to a slight improvement abroad. During the week standard shipping sold as low as $1 35 per cental, recovering to $1 37½. Shippers have light purchases, their wants being well filled, and very little disposition is shown by exporters to stock ahead. Four vessels are on berth for wheat to Sydney. The stiffer tone of freights causes an easier feeling to day. Quote No. 1 shipping $1 36¼@1 37½. Futures—Trade has been dull at the Produce Exchange; prices ruled about steady, fluctuations being within a range of 1 cent. To-day's morning sales were 100 tons buyer year at $1 39¾, 100 tons at $1 39⅝, 500 tons at $1 39⅞, 100 tons at $1 39⅞, seller year, new, $1 27¾.

Afternoon sales, buyer year, opened, $1 39¾; closed, $1 39⅛. Buyer season, $1 37⅝, seller year (new), $1 27⅞.

Barley—Very heavy and prices declined 2½@5c on all grades. Stocks of feed descriptions large, and being steadily added to. Buyers take hold in a hand to mouth sort of way, while speculators are doing practically nothing, or when they do operate, it is generally on the short side of the market. Quote feed, choice, 65@67½c, lower grades, 60@62½c, brewing, 75@87½c. Options, buyer year, 83⅝c; buyer season, 68¼c.

Afternoon options, buyer year, 83⅞c, buyer season, 68⅛c.

Oats—Stocks are larger than expected for the season and receipts continue in excess of requirements. Buyers purchase only to supply immediate wants and there is no disposition shown to stock ahead. Quote feed, choice $1 05, No. 1, $1@1 02½, lower grades 95c@$1, milling $1 10.

Potatoes—Large quantities of consigned stock are still on the wharves awaiting purchasers. Buyers are enabled to pick up best grades at pretty much their own figures. New quotable at ¾@1c, Peerless 30@40c, Burbanks 35@45c, Garnet Chiles 35@40c.

Millstuffs—Easy with a light demand. Bran ranges from $11 to $13 per ton, according to quality, and middlings $12@16 per ton.

Hops—Neglected, few bids in the market and prospects for an advance in price rather discouraging, nominal 10@15c.

Wool—Very little doing as yet; quotations for San Joaquin are 14@18c per lb.

Bags—Trade has quieted down, but holders are firm in their views. Calcuttas June-July delivery 8⅛@8⅜c.

Butter—Fairly active and steady; good to choice roll 15@16c, fancy 17@17½c. Eastern creamery 13@15c in tubs.

Eggs—Demand improving owing to the Eastern trade. California ranch in good demand at 19@20c. Eastern 14@15c.

THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE.

The Breeders' Gazette (Chicago) gives the following sketch of Dr. Rusk, now minister of agriculture:

Doubtless there were many who sincerely hoped that President Harrison would entirely ignore politics in selecting an incumbent for the newly-created position of secretary of agriculture, but as the world and politics go this could hardly be expected, no matter how desirable such a course might appear. The president is the exponent of the views and purposes of the party which placed him in power and is responsible to that party for successfully carrying out its ideas of government. The law comes to his aid and creates executive departments, the heads of which are in confidential relations with the chief executive, and they must be in close sympathy with him and an altogether harmonious "family" if success is to be attained. We have come to accord the president the full right to form his cabinet as he chooses, for it is he who after all must receive the credit for success or bear the blame for failure, whichever follows the choosing. To have selected a man who knew much of agriculture, but was not in sympathy with the party in power or indifferent in the matter, was practically out of the question; such a man would have been as ill at ease in the position, were he a sensitive person, as would his associates. As politics go, it must be expected that a man who has political reputation will be chosen to the agricultural secretaryship. Conceding this, we can insist that the appointment shall go to one whose instincts and sympathies, to say the least, are with our agricultural institution, and who will set himself faithfully to their advancement. What of the new incumbent of the high position so recently created? is the question asked by thousands of agriculturists.

Jeremiah M. Rusk served the people of Wisconsin for seven years as governor of the state, and after having held the office longer than any predecessor relinquished it with the good will and high respect of all classes, regardless of political affiliations. It was during his administration that the intellectual movement began among Wisconsin's agriculturists which has attracted so much attention from other states. At the farmers' institutes—about 100 of which are held every year, for which the state appropriates $12,000 annually—Gov. Rusk was a frequent attendant; he came among the people at these gatherings without ostentation, and took part in the discussions in a give-and-take manner that would astonish one who had not previously known of the man. The owner of a farm himself, he has always taken a deep interest in all agricultural matters. It was Gov. Rusk who recommended the establishment of the experiment station at Madison, now in charge of Prof. Henry, the workings of which are familiar to the readers of the Gazette, and from its inception he has watched the growth of this valuable institution with fatherly pride. During his six years in congress he served upon the committee on agriculture, and there gained a familiarity with the workings of the department of agriculture which qualifies him in an unusual degree for the office which he now holds.

An incident in his canvass for governor furnishes as clear an indication of the character of the man as a long analysis would. It chanced that in a neighboring county an influential farmer had expressed himself as "against Jerry Rusk for governor," and it was quite important that he should be converted; so in company with a friend Mr Rusk drove to see the objecting elector, and found the farmer busy at the "cylinder-end" of a thresher. On the way out it had been agreed that Mr. Rusk should say little or nothing, but let the friend do the talking. To take the farmer from "feeding" would be to make trouble all along the line, and, indeed, at first he was not disposed to come down to listen to the arguments of the mutual friend. Mr. Rusk quickly took in the situation and said, "I'll feed while you talk;" and to the surprise of the crew he stepped on the platform, and shedding his coat and pushing his stove-pipe hat well back on his head he gave the nod to the driver who hurried the horses until everything hummed. The band-cutter slashed viciously at the rapidly-pitched sheaves and pushed them on to the self-appointed feeder, whose ponderous body swayed slowly from side to side as the golden straw, evenly shook out, fairly shot into the invisible jaws of the machine. The stackers were in danger of being "strawed under;" all were astonished and the recalcitrant farmer fairly awe-struck. Every man of the force was working like a beaver, while the "sing" of the cylinder told that the straw was flowing in as smoothly as the waters of a meadow brook. All talk between the friend and farmer soon ceased, the latter looking on with open-mouthed astonishment. Suddenly he exclaimed: "You needn't say another word; I'm in for any man who can feed a threshing machine like that."

As a farmer in early life; a gallant soldier on the field of battle; a member of the national congress; a governor in peaceful days fostering agriculture and manufactures; in stormy times quelling a mob that threatened the metropolis of the state, Jeremiah M. Rusk has shown himself "equal to the occasion;" and the Gazette believes good things from him in the responsible position of secretary of agriculture, and assures him of its loyal support in every laudable effort he may make for the advancement of America's agricultural interests. Upon him will devolve the task of reconstructing the department in harmony with the law, which has given it enlarged powers, devolved upon it new duties, and clothed it with greatly increased dignity and importance in the executive councils of the nation; and the Gazette has every confidence to believe that he will not be found wanting in an earnest, honest effort to discharge his whole duty.

VALUE OF A GOOD BROOD SOW.

The beginner in raising improved hogs is inclined to think that he must purchase a good sized herd to commence with, in order to compete with some of his friends who are already in the business. He does not realize that a good sow will soon give him all the stock he wants, or that he must work into the business by degrees. We have in mind a young man who purchased a sow and eight pigs for a high price. The barrows and sows sold for enough the next autumn to pay the first cost, and the stock increased the next summer to nineteen brood sows. In another instance a pure bred sow was purchased, and the second year $200 worth of pigs were sold, and eleven young sows reserved for the future. Quality is far more important than numbers at the start. With care and skill a good herd can soon be secured, while without proper attention the best stock will soon deteriorate. A new breeder must secure the confidence of the public before purchasers will trust him with orders. When a sow has proved herself valuable, and her pigs sell readily for good prices, she is worth saving from year to year as long as she produces good litters.—American Agriculturalist for April.

FRUIT GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the adjourned meeting of the Southern Oregon Fruit Growers' Association, held at Medford March 30th, for the annual election of officers, Hon. Robert A. Miller was re-elected president and Hon. J. D. Whitman was re-elected treasurer. Curtis Miller, the efficient secretary for the past year, retiring and giving way to S. S. Pentz, Esq. The following vice-presidents were elected to represent their respective districts: P. Dunn, of Ashland; C. C. McClenden, of Sam's Valley; Dr. Adkins, of Medford; P. W. Olwell, of Central Point; Geo. A. Jackson, of Rogue river; Robt. J. Cameron, of Applegate; Peter Simon, of Eagle Point, Henry Brown, of Brownsborough, B. F. Miller, of Gold Hill; David Miller, of Fulo; and Honorables H. B. Miller, Charles Hughes and A. H. Carson, of Josephine county.

A lively interest was taken in the meeting and much practical information was elicited concerning fruit pests, borers, pruning, fertilizing, etc. The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president.

TO KILL CHICKEN LICE.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman writes: "About four years ago I noticed advice by one of your correspondents, H. Stewart, I think, as to clearing a hen house of lice by the use of air-slaked lime. I tried it and it was a complete success. Before that I had been obliged to oil every brood of chickens at least twice, but since using the lime I have no trouble from lice. It is easily applied. After cleaning the house, and scattering plaster to absorb dampness, throw the lime in the air and on the floor, taking care, however, of your lungs and those of the hens. One pullet unfortunately inhaled a little, and wheezed until the day of her death, more than two years later."

THEFER OF $5000.

Our readers doubtless call to mind the offer so widely advertised for the past ten years by H. H. Warner & Co., the proprietors of Warner's Safe Cure and Warner's Log Cabin remedies that they would pay $5000 to anyone who would prove to an impartial jury that they had ever published a testimonial that was not genuine so far as they knew.

This offer has the ring of honesty about it, and as it has an especial interest just now we print a copy of the offer as it appears in Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.'s pamphlets.

$5000 OFFER OF $5000.

Every Testimonial published by us is Bona Fide, and, so far as we know, is absolutely true. To anyone who will prove the contrary to an impartial referee we will give $5000. H. H. WARNER & CO.

Rochester, January 2, 1888.

We ask our readers' careful attention to the following testimonials, as bearing on the offer, and the unbiased opinion of the same with reference to the $5000.

IOWA CITY June 30, 1888.—Some weeks since my daughter had a severe attack of Rheumatism and was persuaded to take one bottle of Warner's Safe Cure, and one of Warner's Rheumatic Cure, and has entirely recovered. We think it wonderful, as twice before she had been confined to her bed for months with it.—MRS. SYLVANUS JOHNSON.

CAMP VERDE, Arizona, Oct 27, 1888.—For nearly a year I suffered from Gravel, and was under treatment of a doctor. I took a great deal of medicine but it all seemed to fail. I then began with Warner's Safe Cure, and after using one bottle of it began to get better; got another bottle, and took half of it. The gravel left me, and I began to mend. I am doing as well as I ever did in my life.—DOLLY MASON.

231 Myrtle Ave., BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 1888.—In 1882 I was attacked with kidney disease, and suffered for twenty years, applying often for relief to medical men of high standing, without any apparent relief. In 1886 I was induced to try Warner's Safe Cure, and after having used fifteen bottles of it I was completely cured, and am happy to state that I have not felt the disease since in any form.—P. J. MULLEN.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 20, 1888.—Last winter I was attacked with severe kidney difficulty, which initiated me for work, severe pains in small of the back, attended with almost constant aching on the least exertion. I suffered much pain, the passage of water was a severe trial, accompanied with much scalding and redness of the urine. I felt I was suffering from premonitory symptoms of Bright's Disease. I procured a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure, and after taking the first bottle I felt so much improved I continued to take it to the extent of six bottles. I am now a new man, able to do a good hard day's work, with no recurrence of any trouble with the kidneys.—MANDE W. PLASS.

There is no getting away from such testimony as the above. The offer is genuine. In fact Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co. have always requested doubters should write direct to persons giving testimonials, (enclosing stamp,) and are of necessity, in the great majority of cases, totally unacquainted with the parties.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. by advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. COLUMBIA, Tenn., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly,

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affliction, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving her Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours truly, J. E. SEARS,

CODY'S CASE ON TRIAL.

John Drouillard Charged With Committing Willful Murder.

Not a True Bill Returned—The Otterspool Libeled—Black and Merrick Indicted—Police Court—Serious Charge.

All day yesterday, Albert J. Cody, the Holton house runner, was on trial for mayhem before Judge Stearns and a jury, in the criminal court. The forenoon was consumed in the selection of a jury and the deliverance of the opening addresses by the attorney.

Cody was sprucely dressed. When he entered the court he was accompanied by his wife and young son. Joseph Morin, the complaining witness, sat near District Attorney McGinn.

A great many witnesses were examined. All agreed that Cody beat Morin, and Cody admitted this himself; but the principal point was whether Cody bit off a section of Morin's lower lip as charged. No one saw Cody bite Morin but three reliable witnesses testified that they heard Morin cry out, "for God's sake don't bite;" Morin says he was bitten, and Dr. D. H. Rand, who dressed his wound, testified that it had the appearance of having been made by teeth. Cody denied that he bit Morin and the witnesses for the defense, one and all, said they did not hear Morin cry out to Cody not to bite him.

The attorneys for the prosecution and defense became involved in several wrangles and Judge Stearns cautioned them to guard their utterances. District Attorney McGinn said at one time that he intended to prove that the witnesses for the defense had been thoroughly drilled by the counsel for Cody. To this end he closely cross examined Edward Kitter, a Holton house barkeeper, and forced him to admit that he called at the office of Judge Caples (of the defense) Wednesday night by request, and told what he knew about the case.

Morin, the witness called, told the story of the fight and exhibited his scars to the jury. When he saw that he was marked for life he got a pistol and began firing at Cody.

"Did you shoot to kill?" was asked.

"Yes."

"Why didn't you hit him?"

"Because I accidentally missed him."

Major Freeman testified that when he asked if there was not a man in the crowd who would stop the fight, Arthur Perkins, a son of the proprietor of the hotel said, "Let them fight it out," and Cody's brother threatened to whip anybody who interfered.

Two barbers, Marks and Roddemacher, testified to hearing Morin say, "For God's sake don't bite me!"

Cody then told his story of the fight. He denied having bitten Morin. He said he beat Morin for slapping the elevator boy.

Arthur Perkins denied that he said, "Let them fight it out." He admitted that he hit Morin several times after Cody had finished with him and thought it possible that the scars on Morin's face were caused by his blows.

The evidence was all in at 4:40 when ex-Gov. Woods began the argument for the state. District Attorney McGinn will close for the prosecution this morning, and the case will probably be given to the jury before noon.

JUDGE TANNER'S LEVEE.

In the police court yesterday Jack Buckley was partially examined on a charge of perjury in connection with the Brown-Buckley stabbing affray. It will be remembered that Buckley, when called on to testify against his assailant in the police court several days since, disclaimed all knowledge of the affair, swearing that he was drunk at the time and did not know who cut him.

Chief Parrish, Captain Gritzmacher and Officer Morgan were placed on the stand yesterday and testified that Buckley had made statements to them respecting the crime while perfectly sober, claiming that Brown had cut him.

The absence from the city of an important witness who will not return before Saturday, precluded the possibility of concluding Buckley's examination before to-morrow and probably Monday.

William Smith, W. F. Krissell and Edward Faulkner, saloon-keepers, appeared charged with selling liquor to minors. The complainant in the case, E. S. Frischkorn, alleges that the defendants sold liquors to his daughters. Judge R. M. Dement, attorney for the first two named, moved for and was granted a continuance until to-day. Faulkner pleaded guilty and was fined $25.

T. J. Schwartz, arrested by Officer Branch Wednesday night, for roaming the streets, was sent below for ten days. When taken into custody, he had in his possession a new horse blanket marked "Nellie R.," which is undoubtedly stolen property.

Mrs. Wunless, drunk, five days; James Delaney, same, $2; T. N. Kelly, who cut William Linent in the neck, Monday evening, waived examination, and was held in the sum of $500 to appear before the grand jury; William Reynolds, larceny of a lot of stone cutter's tools, will have an examination to-day; William Thomas was fined $10 for creating a disturbance in the Salvation Army barracks last Tuesday night.

BEATEN AT HIS OWN GAME.

The trial of the suit brought by J. G. Sahlinger, the whisky-soaked Fourth street tailor, against Sol Shapirer, the saloon-keeper, came up in Justice Philan's court yesterday before a jury.

Sahlinger alleges in his complaint that some months ago he loaned to Shapirer two volumes of Hebrew books, valued at $4, and that the latter has failed to return them, though often requested to do so. He also alleges that at divers times he has done cleaning and mending on the defendant's coats and pants, to the extent of $9.25, making a total of $13.25. Further, that Shapirer when asked for the money, spat in his (Sahlinger's) face.

Shapirer, in his answer, set up a counter claim for $69, which he said was a balance due from the plaintiff for money advanced, etc. Defendant said that he owes Sahlinger nothing, having paid him in full for the book.

The jury rendered a verdict in favor of the defendant, but awarded him nothing on his counter claim of $69.

OBSTRUCTING THE MAILS.

The grand jury also returned a true bill in the cases of Joseph Merrick and W. E. Black, charged with obstructing the United States mails. This is a technical charge, but the object of the fellows was to wreck a train on the O. R. & N. railroad. They placed a dynamite cartridge, or something of the kind, on the railroad track at bridge 169, east of Pendleton, which exploded as the engine passed over it, breaking a piece out of the rail, but fortunately not throwing the train off the trestle as was evidently intended. The fellows were employed in wood cutting not far from the scene of the "accident," and Mr. Sullivan, of Thiel's Detective Agency, sent a man to get employment with them, who ferreted out the whole business. Black secured money in Pendleton on a forged check and he and Merrick started to leave the state, but were caught at Baker City.

NOT A TRUE BILL.

The United States grand jury yesterday returned "not a true bill" in the cases of the United States against John Smallman and D. B. Smith, sheriff and deputy sheriff of Linn county. They were charged with allowing W. R. McDaniel, a defaulting postmaster, sentenced to confinement for one year, to go at large. The evidence showed that Sheriff Smallman had allowed McDaniel to go to the funeral of a member of his family, in charge of a deputy, and the grand jury promptly returned "not a true bill." Just who preferred the charge or why it was made is not known, but under the circumstances it would seem it must have been a piece of spite work or something of the sort.

CHARGED WITH WILLFUL MURDER.

In the case of John Drouillard, second assistant engineer of the steamship Corona, charged with having killed Pedro Ribes, a fireman on that vessel, on March 26, shortly after she sailed from San Francisco, the grand jury returned a true bill charging Drouillard with willful murder. The two quarreled in the fireroom of the vessel, and Ribes had Drouillard by the throat, when the latter stabbed him eleven times in the body, causing death in a few minutes.

A VERY SERIOUS CHARGE.

An aged German named John Braun is in a very serious fix. He is charged with swearing falsely in endeavoring to defraud two insurance companies. The defendant's house, about four miles out of the city on the Barnes road, recently burned down. The house was insured for about $600 in two companies. Braun collected the insurance from one of the companies, swearing at that time, it is alleged, that he was insured in only one company. He, after drawing the money from the first company, waited about a month and then put in a like claim to the second company, but was detected and arrested. Justice Tuttle held him in $1000 bonds for examination.

HACKMAN BROWN INDICTED.

William Brown, the hackman, who stabbed "Tough" Buckley and who was discharged in the police court, because Buckley's memory was conveniently defective regarding the circumstances of the row, has been indicted by the grand jury and was arraigned in the criminal court yesterday and given until Monday to plead. He furnished $1000 bail and was released.

Charles S. Perkins, indicted for feloniously assaulting Gertie Kepper, was allowed five days to move for a new trial.

The trials of Henry Diedrick and Fred Fick, for assault to kill, were set for May 14 and 21 respectively.

SHIP LIBELED.

The British ship Otterspool was libeled in the United States district court yesterday by William Tucker, to collect $89 alleged to be due him as wages, and to recover damages in the sum of $5000. It is charged in the complaint that Tucker, while the ship was on her way to this port, was sent aloft to stow the top-gallant sail, and the main-top rigging having been greased, he slipped and sprained his ankle. It is further claimed that his injury was not properly treated, wherefore he asks for damages in the amount above named.

SMUGGLER INDICTED.

A true bill was also returned against Chung Sing, charged with smuggling thirty-six five-tael cans of opium into these United States. If convicted he will probably be sentenced to a year in Port Townsend.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE.

Mary Gross is suing John H. Gross for a divorce in the state circuit. She also wants the custody of their two year old child Louise. She alleges that her husband has been guilty of cruelty.

BELINDA LEE AGAIN.

Miss Belinda Lee, a colored woman, is again in trouble. This time it is for assaulting and beating one Gus Goldenberg. She will have an examination before Justice Tuttle to-day.

LICENSED TO WED.

Marriage licenses were granted yesterday for Thomas Ellenreider and Anna Humbel, B. F. Boone and M. C. Guthrie, J. A. Arnspiger and Janette Ball.

THE CLOSING SESSION.

Last Day's Proceedings of the Willamette Association of Congregational Churches.

The closing session of the Willamette Association of Congregational churches at Forest Grove was opened by a service of song, which was followed by an address by Hon. Napoleon Davis, of Salem, on "The Duty of Churches to Pacific University."

For the encouragement of the students and friends of the university, he read words of commendation from the report of a committee of inspection. The speaker then sounded the call "Come over and help us," a call that is emphasized by the enlarged opportunity for the usefulness of the university, and showed that as it is needful for our churches to prepare for the welcome of the incoming multitude, so must our educational institutions.

Next followed services in memory of Dr. G. H. Atkinson, which were introduced by the following resolution, presented by Rev. T. E. Clapp:

WHEREAS, For the first time in its history, our association meets without the presence of its honored founder and most solicitous friend, Rev. Dr. G. H. Atkinson.

Resolved, That we, its present members, regard the event as fairly epochal in significance, (We are like a home bereft of a father,) the permanent withdrawal of his deep affectionate, passionate interest, of his extensive experience, unfaltering courage and hopefulness, of his ready and heroic doctrine, leaves a vacancy oppressive, depressing and ever-increasingly sad. It is a permanent withdrawal. He will not pass this way again. "We sorrow most of all that we shall see his face no more." We know that "the workmen die, but the work goes on." Is it wonderful if the living workmen falter, so suddenly bereft of their leader? His memory is ineffaceable, his service inestimable, and his example irresistible. His prayers are a guarantee for the future.

Reminiscences of Dr. Atkinson's early work in Oregon were given by Mrs. Hatch, of Salem; Mrs. Walker, of Forest Grove; Rev. Dixon, of Yakima, who were followed by a number of others.

Before adjournment resolutions were passed thanking the people of Forest Grove for their kind hospitality, the choir for their efficient assistance, Mr. S. T. Walker for handsome floral decorations and the Southern Pacific Railroad Company for reduced rates to returning delegates.

A COLD-BLOODED SWINDLE.

A Number of Italian Laborers Victimized by a Sharper.

A number of Italian laborers who have been waiting here to find a job on some railroad work have been swindled out of about $500 by a fellow who signed himself Tillie Davis. He told the men that he wanted eighty of them to work on a railroad from Ashland across to Boise city.

Mr. A. de Martini, who looks after the interests of his countrymen, told them not to trust this man; as he did not believe there was any such road being built, but before going they had better send a man out to see about the job. They accordingly sent a man out to Ashland and soon after a dispatch came saying that it was all right. So the men paid this fellow Davis about $500 for their fares out to the job.

Next day he was missing, and soon after a letter was received from the man, sent to Ashland, stating that on his arrival he was met by two men, who asked him if he had come out to see about the railroad work. He said he had, and he was then taken several miles out in the woods to where there was a sawmill, where he was kept two or three days. When he remarked that he saw no signs of the promised work, he was told that if he did not keep still he might stay there permanently. During the time he was detained it appears that some confederate of Davis sent the dispatch which induced the men to put up for their fares.

The last heard of Davis was a dispatch dated from the Nucleus hotel, San Francisco, and addressed to a friend here. This is a carefully concocted swindle most successfully carried out, and although the amount each man was robbed of was not large, it is quite a serious matter to the poor men.

A Letter From Dr. Hans Von Bulow.

The Knabe Pianos, which I did not know before, have been chosen for my present concert tour in the United States by my impressario and accepted by me on the recommendation of my friend Bechstein, acquainted with their merits. Had I known these pianos as now I do I would have chosen them by myself, as their sound and touch are more sympathetic to my ears and hands than all others of the country.

A SITE FOR THE CITY HALL.

Mayor DeLashmutt Expresses His Opinion of the Subject to a Reporter.

He Says That if He Wanted to Work For Personal Interest He Could Have Made a Better Selection Than He Did.

Replying to a reporter's question as to whether one of the park blocks would not make a good site for a city hall, Mayor DeLashmutt talked city hall sites for nearly half an hour yesterday afternoon.

"The park blocks," he said, "being only 200x100 feet, while they may be large enough for the present, would not suffice for future needs because it would be impossible to enlarge the grounds. The question now is whether the half block at Eleventh and Washington streets, if accepted, will be sufficient. If the city wants the remainder of the block it can always afford to pay more for it than any one else. We could buy the rest of the block but I see no need of gathering it in until we need it.

"There is just this in connection with this talk about a city hall site: One objection urged to having the hall at Eleventh and Washington streets is that it will benefit a street railway system in which I am interested, which seems to imply that a man cannot rise above a few five-cent fares. If I were working for personal interests in this matter, I would certainly favor the Market or Plaza block for the reason that I have large holdings in real estate in those localities, and if the location of a city hall in any particular portion of the city would be an advantage to that portion I would be benefited by the location of the hall on either the Market or Plaza block, or in the north end of town where I own much property rather than on Washington street, where I have no property. I own a quarter of a block on Fifth and Main streets, a quarter of a block on First and Main, a quarter of a block on Front and Jefferson, one-half of Knott block on Front street, between Jefferson and Columbia, a quarter of a block on Fourth and Madison, a quarter of a block on Fourth and Clay streets, a lot on Madison street, between Fifth and Sixth, and another lot on Second and Main streets, all of which would be benefited by the selection of either the Plaza block or the Market block. Then I have the same interest in the Second street car line than I have in the Washington street line.

"The only reason why I have not from the outset favored the selection of the plaza block or the Market block is that we might go ahead and build and spend $15,000 or $20,000 of the people's money, when somebody would get out an injunction, on the ground that the plaza was donated to the city for plaza purposes and for no other use, and then our money would be tied up and work on the hall delayed for no one knows how long. The only way I would consent, under any circumstances, to the selection of the plaza would be by first making a test case of the subject.

"The intersection of Washington and Eleventh streets, where I made the purchase, is what may be termed a pivotal point. Several streets converge here, and it is more accessible to all parts of the city than a block further east and closer to First street. Business seems to be working westward, and I regret that I do not own more property in the west end."

The city council will hold a special meeting this evening to talk over the site question.

E. G. WHEELER ORDAINED.

The Ministerial Council of the Willamette Association Meets for That Purpose.

Pursuant to a call issued by the First Baptist church, of this city, a ministerial council of the Willamette association convened at the above named church at 2 P. M. Wednesday, to consider the question of ordaining E. G. Wheeler to the ministry. Nearly twenty churches were represented in the council.

Rev. John Gordon, D. D., pastor of the church, was unanimously elected moderator of the council.

Examination of the candidate commenced at 2:30 P. M., and he was subjected to a running fire of questions as to his views on Bible doctrine and kindred subjects until 4:30 P. M., when the council retired for deliberation. Five minutes later the council reported a unanimous vote in favor of the ordination of the candidate.

Public ordination services were held in the evening and were well attended. The ordination sermon, a highly edifying discourse, was delivered by Rev. S. P. Davis, of East Portland.

The ordination prayer was offered by Rev. O. D. Taylor, of The Dalles, Or.

The hand of welcome to the ministry was extended, with a few well-chosen words, by Rev. J. Cairns, of Vancouver.

The charge to the new minister was ably delivered by Rev. G. J. Burchette, of Portland. The benediction was then pronounced by Rev. Wheeler.

Altogether the exercises were most interesting and instructive, while of the most solemn nature.

The Rev. Mr. Wheeler has been actively engaged in missionary and Sunday school work on the north coast for the past four years and is widely and favorably known throughout Oregon and Washington territory.
